DRY LAW LOOMS LARGE AS ISSUE FOR PRESIDENT

Prohibition Stand and Business Status May Decide Political Fate
Opponents Call Message on Report Biggest Blunder in Years

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1931 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—(CPA)—Judging by the outbursts in political quarters here — and of course that means congress and the official group — the fortunes of Herbert Hoover in respect to renomination or reelection hinge much more on the right handling of the prohibition issue than almost anything else.

Indeed, if a poll were to be taken of politicians it would be discovered that the paramount issues of the next presidential campaign will be prohibition and the business situation. Both these questions were dominant in the 1928 congressional elections and the men who are to take their seats in the new congress will feel the influence of the electorate perhaps more than the customary mandate.

The query as to what the people meant by the elections may remain unanswered, but the signs point clearly to the fact that dissatisfaction with the existing prohibition situation came from both wets and drys and hence the demand for improvement is all-controlling.

REGARDED AS BLUNDER
Mr. Hoover is being urged on every side to erase the impression given by his message transmitting the Wickham report. His own friends are pointing out the need for clarification. And his opponents are already characterizing the message as the biggest single political blunder since the ill-fated appeal which President Wilson made for a Democratic congress in 1918. There is of course no similarity between the two but the politicians declare that unless Mr. Hoover promptly gets on the side of the revision in principle and away from the uncompromising attitude he was believed to have assumed in his message, his reelection becomes a matter of great uncertainty.

The proponents of revision argue that it is in keeping with the spirit of the times, that the existing situation has been declared intolerable.

Appeal From Anti-Merger Ruling

Beaten in Suit

TOM MIX

Erie, Pa. —(AP)—Col. Zack Miller, owner of the 101 Ranch shows was awarded $30,000 in his breach of contract suit against Tom Mix, movie cowboy, by a jury here today.

Miller had sued Mix for $325,000 charging that the actor had broken a promise to appear as a circus rider in 101 Ranch show. Mix denied an agreement had been made.

The show owner claimed Mix joined the Sells-Floto circus at the time he had agreed to appear with the 101 Ranch outfit in 1929.

The verdict was the reverse of that returned earlier in the week at Natchez, Miss., where Col. Miller had entered suit for $50,000. The Natchez jury decided Mix had not committed libel in denying he entered an agreement with Col. Miller to appear as a cowboy in the 101 Ranch shows.

Today's verdict, Mix said, was a surprise to him. Col. Miller was not present, having left yesterday at the close of the trial for his ranch in Oklahoma.

DIRECTORS OF SHEET-TUBE CO. ORDER ACTION

Brief Announcement Made but Not Amplified by Youngstown Officer

Youngstown, Ohio —(AP)—The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company and its directors today appeared from the injunction restraining the company's merger with the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

Legal steps necessary to continue the long and bitter court battle, which was initiated by Cyrus S. Eaton of Cleveland, merger foe, were taken shortly after the board of directors, in their first meeting since the court decision Dec. 29, determined to appeal. Eaton was present at the meeting.

Counsel for the company filed three appeal bonds of $10,000, one for each of the three actions—against the company, against the company with Bethlehem, and against Sheet and Tube directors.

Counsel for Eaton said they would appear before the appeals court Monday "wherever it is sitting" and demand an immediate hearing.

Announcement of the decision was made by Walter Meub, secretary and treasurer of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, who emerged from the meeting long enough to say: "We're going to appeal. That's all we are giving out. Meub at once returned to the meeting, without answering reporters' questions.

James A. Campbell, 76-year-old chairman of Sheet and Tube, returned early today from a two day conference in New York which was attended also by Youngstown Sheet and Tube counsel and engineers.

Declares Only Small Fund Necessary To Elect Davis

Witness Tells Nye Probers Penn Candidate Was Popular at Polls

Washington —(AP)—Another witness testified before the senate campaign funds committee today that Senator Davis was a popular candidate in the Pennsylvania Republican primary last year and needed little financial assistance to win.

Thomas J. Nelly, treasurer of the Dauphin Co. Republican election committee, said the Brown-Pinchot gubernatorial race was the "hardest" and it was unnecessary to campaign for Davis, at least in the Steelton district.

Chairman Nye, of the committee, wants Davis unseated on grounds of excessive expenditures in behalf of his primary and election races.

"It was pretty well circulated around that Davis was a pudger and the working glass were favorable to him," Nelly said.

Asked by Nye what the expenditures would have been if no gubernatorial race had been on, Nelly said: "We man our district with the same number of men whether there is a big fight or not. It is an organization expense."

He added the Republican organization in Dauphin Co. functioned the whole year around whether there is a campaign or not.

Nelly said no campaign was needed for Davis in the general election either.

FOWLER SEAT TO BE SOUGHT BY REYNOLDS

Attorney General Enters Supreme Court Race in April Election

Madison —(AP)—Attorney General John Reynolds announced that he would be a candidate for the supreme court in the April election.

The attorney general will oppose the reelection of Justice Chester A. Fowler, Pond du Lac. Attorney General Reynolds was defeated in the last supreme court election by Justice Fowler who won a three-cornered race. Raymond J. Cannon, disbarred Milwaukee attorney, was the other candidate.

The statement issued by the attorney general today read:

"In response to an insistent demand from all parts of the state, I will be a candidate at the April election for justice of the supreme court. I have not had time to prepare a statement of the reasons that have been pressed upon me and that have convinced me that it is my duty to be a candidate. I hope to have time to prepare such a statement within a few days."

At recent conferences of Progressive-Republican leaders the names of Walter D. Corrigan, Milwaukee attorney and Daniel Grady, Portage attorney, were mentioned as prospective candidates for the supreme court but both turned aside any suggestion that they run in the April election.

Attorney General Reynolds' candidacy for reelection after his defeat in the supreme court race caused a rupture between his constituents and those Progressives who supported Alvin C. Reis, Madison attorney. During the campaign Reis charged that Mr. Reynolds had promised to state his political fortunes at the supreme court election and not be a candidate for reelection as attorney general.

San Antonio, Texas —(AP)—A captive Mexican lion slew Viola Friesen, 2 years old, at her home here last night, betraying confidence built up in hours of play. He was killed for the treachery.

603,499 Fed In 21 States By Red Cross

Washington —(AP)—While the relief issue was agitated anew in the senate, the Red Cross today reported contributions in excess of $400,000 as a result of the nationwide radio broadcast Thursday night for donations to its $10,000,000 fund. The total to date was $1,670,952.

Red Cross chapters were reported feeding 603,499 persons in 343 counties in 21 states as of noon Friday. In the previous 35 hours, the number had jumped by $16,455.

"The house appropriations committee was critical" at the outset of the senate session by Senator Caraway for delaying the proposed $25,000,000 appropriation to the Red Cross by holding hearings. The taking of testimony begins Monday. The senate has approved the fund.

"One kind purpose they are holding hearings. I don't know," the Arkansas Democrat said. "The situation has been gone over thoroughly."

He cited the radio appeals from President Hoover, former President Coolidge and others as evidence of the need. Caraway read a number of letters from people in various parts of the country asking for food and clothing.

VICTIM SLAIN WHEN HE DARES PAIR TO SHOOT

Gunmen Flee from Store-Postoffice Without Search for Money

SUCCUMBS IN HOSPITAL
Customer Slugged When He Is Slow to Comply With Robbers' Order

Albion, Dane-co, Wis. —(AP)—Accepting his challenge to "shoot if you want to," two bandits mortally wounded Frank H. Kelling, 59, postmaster and storekeeper, here last night during an unsuccessful hold-up. They then turned and slugged a customer in the store and fled.

Kelling died in an Edgerton hospital this morning.

The unmasked men entered the store at 6:30 last night, and one of them asked for a package of cigarettes. As Kelling handed it to him, he and his companion drew guns and ordered the postmaster and three customers to raise their hands.

Witnesses said Kelling muttered something to the intruders and then told them to shoot if they dared. One of the bandits fired, and after the postmaster fell with a bullet below his heart, the pair ordered the customers to lie on the floor. Maynard Anderson was slow in complying and was slugged, but not seriously injured.

The bandits fled without searching for money, leaving in a blue automobile, Sheriff Fred Finn was informed.

The sheriff turned his search to the vicinity of Stoughton today when an automobile, believed to have been used by the bandits, was found in the streets here.

Colonel McDougall holds the rank of brigadier general in the Nicaraguan constabulary which acts in cooperation with marines.

Preliminary Hearing Set for Jan. 31 at Arraignment in Chilton

Chilton —(AP)—Five youths who perpetrated a series of robberies in four Calumet-co towns which they visited in a stolen automobile were held in the county jail today under bond of $10,000 each for preliminary hearing Jan. 31.

They were arraigned here late yesterday before John T. Hume, justice of the peace, after their removal here from the jail at Appleton where they were imprisoned following arrest Thursday night.

Large investments in the separation of rail and highway grades, as well as better attention to protective methods, were credited with having played a part in the improvement.

CONSIDERS FATE OF DEATH CAR DRIVER

Green Bay —(AP)—District Attorney Verne Lovell today had under advisement disposition of charges against Francis A. Thomas, 32, found guilty by a coroner's jury of reckless driving in the deaths of two men and injury of three other persons as the result of an automobile accident near here Jan. 14.

Testimony at the inquest into the deaths of Robert McNamara, 28, and David Duquaine, 35, revealed they were members of a party of four men and two girls making a midnight tour of roadhouses when their automobile skidded and crashed into a tree.

Thomas testified none of the party was intoxicated, but he admitted taking drinks at several places. The jury made no recommendation on its findings.

BEGGAR ARRESTED IN DEATH OF SALESMAN

Minneapolis —(AP)—The keen eyes and memory of a telegraph messenger boy were credited by police today with the arrest of John Hart, 22, beggar, who they plan to charge with responsibility for the death of Charles W. Brown, Milwaukee salesman.

Mr. Brown, salesman for a Sheboygan Enamel Ware Manufacturing company and former resident of Oshkosh, was slugged by an alms-seeker to whom he refused to give money last Monday. He died before a police ambulance got him to a hospital. It was found the fall to the pavement probably brought death.

Donald Padlock, 17, the messenger, witnessed the attack. Last night, he was in the vicinity and saw a man he thought resembled the beggar. He cried for police. Detectives rushed there. Hart squirmed away from one, struck another and ran. He was recaptured and police said today he had confessed the assault on Brown. He said, however, that he struck the salesman in self-defense. Police gave this plea no credence.

Jury Breaks Deadlock To Convict Daisy De Boe On Single Count

DECISION ENDS LONG DISPUTE OVER HER GUILT

Defense Preparing Petition for Probation—Sentence Set for Monday

Los Angeles—(AP)—Convicted by the compromise verdict of an exasperated jury which for hours had been deadlocked 3 to 4 for acquittal, Daisy De Boe languished in jail today awaiting sentence for theft from her former employer, Clara Bow of the films.

After more than 48 hours of bitter wrangling the jury of seven men and five women finally brought in a verdict yesterday finding Daisy guilty of one of the 35 counts of grand theft, with which she was charged and recommending clemency.

"Oh, my God!" Daisy cried when the verdict was heard. "But I'm not guilty. If they were going to make me guilty of one count I was guilty of all. How could they do it?"

She was assisted into an ante room by friends who tried vainly to quiet her sobbing.

There was little or no exultation over the verdict in the Bow household, where the red-haired actress is ill with a cold.

"For Daisy's sake, I hope the court will be lenient," said Clara, who accused Miss De Boe of stealing $15,045.35. "She was the best friend I had in my life."

And Clara's smiles might as well have been for Daisy as from the cold.

The court set next Monday for passing of sentence. Conviction on the one count carries a penalty of one to ten years in San Quentin penitentiary.

A petition for probation will be prepared immediately and submitted to the court, defense Attorney Nathan Friedman announced. Deputy District Attorney David Clark, who handled the prosecution, stated he would not oppose it.

Jurors said a terrific struggle preceded the compromise verdict, which they said was arrived at while the jury stood eight to four for acquittal. Two women jurors, who reported, held out for conviction on all of the 35 counts, which involved the alleged theft of $15,870 from the actress.

Long Jury Battle
Directed by the court to continue their deliberations after they twice had reported inability to agree, the jury finally picked one of the counts charging the theft of $250 two days before Daisy was fired as Clara's secretary, and voted a conviction.

One of the women jurors, Mrs. Mary A. Everett, mother of two grown daughters, admitted leading the fight for conviction "as a lesson to other young girls." She said the count on which Daisy was convicted was picked "more or less at random."

"There is no bitterness on my part toward Miss De Boe," she added. "I did my best to give young girls a lesson."

Drawn by the promise of an exposure of the private life of the film "it" girl, when Daisy threatened to "tell all" about Clara at the trial's outset, capacity crowds jammed the courtroom. When she reappeared, she took the stand early in the trial and identified a heap of telegrams and letters from her boy friends containing impassioned endearments, the appetites of the curious were whetted.

When Daisy took the witness chair and began to detail life in the Bow residence, with pokers parties, liquor purchases and other intimacies, she brought to the fore, interest reached fever pitch.

Then Judge Doran put a damper on the sensational proceedings by ruling no more mud-slinging was necessary to determine the guilt or innocence of the frail ex-secretary.

RECOVER BODY OF MISSING INVENTOR

Police Scent Slaying—Woman Also Believed Victim of Killers

Long Beach, Calif.—(AP)—The ocean has yielded the first clue to the strange disappearance of Charles Huddleston, 48-year-old inventor, and Mrs. Lola Cook, 36, a widow. The man's body, bearing evidence of a beating, was found under a pier at the waterfront.

Police, who had made an intensive search since they dropped from sight Jan. 13, said the man apparently had been murdered. No trace was found of the woman or the automobile in which they were seen. Police, who found Huddleston's body yesterday said they believed Mrs. Cook also had been slain.

Investigation of the disappearance revealed Huddleston recently was granted a patent on an improvement of a machine used in drilling. Friends said he valued the patent at several million dollars and had told them determined efforts had been made to wrest it from him.

Huddleston's bank disclosed it had cleared a check bearing his signature and dated Jan. 15, two days after his disappearance. The check was indorsed by two men who have not been found. Their names were not revealed by police.

AUTO RECOVERED
A Buick coupe, owned by Gordon Radtke, 119 N. Green Bay-st., was recovered by police at Napaah yesterday afternoon and returned to the owner. The car was stolen about 10 o'clock Thursday night from a parking place on E. College-ave near the Masonic temple.

Kissing Days Over

RICHARD P. HOBSON

Spanish War Hero Mourns For Old Days

Phoenix, Ariz.—(AP)—Richard Pearson Hobson, in the days of "remember the Maine," was quite a dashing blade among the hero worshipping members of the younger feminine set.

His kisses, bestowed and received after he sank the old Merrimac in Santiago's harbor entrance in an attempt to bottle up the Spanish fleet, "high rang around the world."

But he passed one up yesterday. Hobson, now secretary general of the Western Conference on Narcotic Education, came here to confer with members of the Arizona legislature on uniform narcotic laws.

"Remember your kissing days, captain," newspapermen asked. "As well, if not better, than I remember the Maine."

"Fine, will you permit one of our capitol's fairest stenographers to kiss you, for the sake of photographic record?"

"I shall be delighted," the captain beamed.

But when came the time, the place and the girl, the hero of the Merrimac suddenly demurred, saying he came here for a very serious purpose which a frivolous kiss might defeat.

"I guess," said he, with a touch of sadness, "my kissing days are over."

COL. FARRAND TO TALK HERE FEB. 2

State Legion Commander Will Attend Meeting of Oney Johnston Post

Col. Roy P. Farrand, St. John Military academy, Delafield, and commander of the state department of the American legion, will talk to Outagamie county legionnaires and post auxiliaries at the next meeting of Oney Johnston post on Feb. 2. The executive committee decided to put the Graff trophy on display in the windows of a downtown store so that the public may see the gift.

The trophy was awarded by Marshall C. Graff, Appleton, immediate past commander of the state department. It is a traveling trophy.

Establishment of a downtown office of Oney Johnston post so that records may be kept at a centralized point also was considered by the committee. Arrangements for an office will be made soon.

QUITS HER JOB AS RESULT OF FARO SWINDLE

Mrs. Blackledge Resigns as Illinois Collector of Internal Revenue

Chicago—(AP)—Still denying any complicity in the swindle by which her political friend, Edward R. Litsinger lost $50,000 to sharpers at Springfield, Mrs. Myrtle Blackledge today issued a formal statement following her resignation from the office of collector of internal revenue. She was under the care of a doctor at the home of a friend.

In quitting her $7,500 a year job Mrs. Blackledge pleaded error in judgment, denied any ulterior motives in inducing Litsinger to lend her $50,000 to help recuperate her fortunes, which had been at low ebb since the almost simultaneous deaths of her husband and son last April.

Washington—(AP)—Mrs. Myrtle T. Blackledge today resigned as collector of internal revenue in Illinois. The internal revenue bureau received the resignation this morning and said it would be accepted at once.

The investigation into Mrs. Blackledge's conduct of her office will be continued by the bureau until it is assured that her affairs with the government are in proper shape.

She has been involved in a "faro swindle," saying she lost $50,000 in cash and $207,000 in paper profits in a faro game at Springfield, Ill.

The bureau has not determined who would replace her. It is probable some assistant in the office will be placed in temporary charge, as collectors of internal revenue are appointed by the president.

Formal announcement of the acceptance of the resignation was withheld pending approval of Secretary Mellon.

It was said on behalf of the internal revenue bureau that it had no expectation that Mrs. Blackledge's handling of government business was in any way affected by her difficulty in Springfield.

AWAIT FORMAL REPLY

Chicago—(AP)—Chicago politicians and others interested in the contrast stories of two leaders regarding the $50,000 "faro swindle" in Springfield, Ill., waited today for the expected formal reply of Mrs. Myrtle Blackledge, internal revenue collector, to the statement of Edward R. Litsinger, concerning her part in the affair.

Three veteran federal officials, nominally subject to Mrs. Blackledge's authority in her position as internal revenue collector for the Northern Illinois district, questioned her for several hours yesterday. Chicago newspapers said they had learned that the investigation of Litsinger's alleged swindle, which Mrs. Blackledge had won paper profits of $207,000 and $50,000 cash borrowed from Litsinger in order to collect. Litsinger has said he knew nothing of the card game.

Mrs. Blackledge was reported at the point of a collapse at the south side home of friends. Mitchell announced after an inspection that the revenue bureau's books were in good order.

W. J. Elmore, attached to Madison's office, conferred in Springfield yesterday with J. W. Abbelman, revenue collector for Southern Illinois, and with Chief T. P. Sullivan of Springfield, who said he thought Mrs. Blackledge was telling the truth and had concluded his investigation except for a search for the three card players, with whom Mrs. Blackledge said she played.

The Herald-Examiner said today federal officials were searching nationally for three men who conducted a confidence game in Springfield in August, 1927, in almost exactly the manner of the latest swindle. Donald Fraser of Chicago was the victim.

It also said that it had located "Nicky" Arnshein, in his New York apartment and that he had connection with the case, pleading that he had been ill for the past month. Reports had previously been circulated that he was wanted as a suspect.

WOULD INCLUDE PARK IN NEW ZONING DISTRICT

S. collector of internal revenue at Chicago, lost $50,000 after losing $207,000 ahead, is shown above. Below, at the right, is Edward Litsinger, prominent Chicago Republican leader, who is said to have loaned Mrs. Blackledge the money. ## BADGER SENATORS WANT HEARING ON WINNEBAGO LEVEL

Support Congressman Reilly in Move to Hold Up Department's Order

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—(AP)—Senators Robert M. La Follette Jr. and John J. Blaine of Wisconsin have joined Rep. Michael K. Reilly of Fond du Lac in asking the War Department to grant a hearing on the question of the levels of Lake Winnebago before raising the level.

The department recently ordered the level restored to 214 inches above the crest of Menasha dam, the limit set in the agreement with the locality, instead of the 15-inch level maintained for several years.

The senators also requested the War Department to consider postponing enforcement of the higher level until after the survey of the Fox river, authorized in the Lampert bill past a fortnight ago by the Senate and recently signed by President Hoover, is completed. This bill was introduced by the late Rep. Florian Lampert of Oshkosh, passed by the House of Representatives through the efforts of Rep. Reilly, and by the Senate through the efforts of Sen. Blaine, who got very quick action on it after it came from the House.

The cities on the lower Fox river—Menasha, Kaukauna, Appleton, De Pere, and others—petitioned for the higher level on the ground that the 15-inch level is unsanitary, while the cities on the lake—Oshkosh and Fond du Lac particularly—want the lower level on the ground that the higher level produces danger from floods.

ARMOUR FIRM PASSES FROM FAMILY HANDS

Former Stenographer of Packing Concern Chosen as President

Chicago—(AP)—The firm of Armour and Company, packers, today was headed by T. George Lee, a former stenographer, whose election to the presidency was followed almost immediately by the resignation of Philip D. Armour, III, first vice president and member of the company's board of directors.

Thus executive control of Armour and Company, which for 63 years has had some member of the famous family in an official position, passed completely into the hands of others. The third Philip is a grandson of "Old P. D." Armour, the founder.

Armour's withdrawal as an executive was the fourth resignation among members of the Armour family within the past few years. Lester Armour, also a grandson of the founder, resigned as a vice president in March of 1929, and Laurance H. Armour resigned as a vice president in 1926. Laurance and A. Watson Armour, however, remain as directors.

Armour announced his severance of nearly 17 years of association with the company in a brief statement in which he said that "under the circumstances there was no alternative," adding that his action was the "greatest disappointment" of his life. He declined to amplify the statement, but it was learned that he had looked forward to becoming president of the concern after the death of P. D. Edson White.

"This is Swan Song," said Armour. "Is my swan song. I haven't anything to add to it."

White was killed Jan. 15 when he fell from the seventh floor window of his home.

The action of the board of directors in selecting Lee followed a four-hour session. Newspaper reporters noticed that Armour left immediately after the vote was taken, without waiting with the other officers to offer congratulations to the newly selected president.

The new president, who is 53 years old, was also named as a director. He was closely associated with White during the latter's presidency of the concern. Like White he started at the bottom. His first post was that of a stenographer in the beef department in 1895. After acting as a sales manager in Philadelphia and New York, he returned to Chicago to become a vice president.

RUG DEALER CLAIMS HE WAS ROBBED OF $15,000
San Mateo, Calif.—(AP)—Serop Gerabedian, Oriental rug dealer, called in the guardians of the law, explaining he had been robbed of $15,000 worth of floor coverings.

Three men, named as the robbers, were said to have worn white silk masks and black berbies. They escaped, Gerabedian averred, under cover of a dummy, left holding a pistol in front of the store.

It was a mysterious robbery and police questioned the rug man at some length. Finally, officers said, he admitted faking the robbery to raise $15,000 to pay a mortgage on his home.

Ross Blames Limited Gold Supply For Price Slumps

Chicago—(AP)—Edward Alsworth Ross professor of sociology at the University of Wisconsin, addressing the annual convention of the League of Nations association here today, declared that "so long as the whole price structure rests on a gold foundation I see no hope of escape from long price declines."

"There is no assurance whatever," he said, "that the world's stock of money gold will expand in due ratio with the expanding requirements of the world's business. All economists agree that a stable price level is an indispensable condition of healthy business, since the capricious fluctuations in the volume of gold available for money use forbid hope of price stability under the gold standard, why should we not begin to plan for an international paper money issued and regulated under the authority of the league of nations?"

WOMEN ASK RELIEF FOR NEEDY INDIANS

Club Aroused at Reports of Starvation and Death from Exposure

Emergency relief appropriations to aid destitute Indians in northern Wisconsin were asked in a telegram to Governor LaFollette from the Indian affairs committee of the Milwaukee Woman's club. The committee also suggested that a committee of business men and women be appointed to study the needs of impoverished Indians.

Fear that federal relief will be too slow to do much good this winter was expressed in a letter sent to Miss R. M. Campbell, chairman of the club's inter-racial relations committee, by Congressman George J. Schneider of the Ninth district. He suggested that "any immediate steps to help must come from sources other than the federal government."

But the women did not entirely give up hope that federal authorities may be stirred to action. At the board meeting Wednesday it was voted to send a message to the federal Indian bureau requesting "definite information as to immediate relief for suffering, half starved and impoverished Wisconsin Indians."

Miss Campbell's wire to Governor LaFollette states that "it is reported on good authority that eight aged and impoverished Indians have

He pointed out that the chamber is operating far below its budget and that its financial status is far above last year.

Sentiment Becomes Stronger To Drop Garbage Disposal Plans

HOG-FEEDING BIDS STUDIED BY COMMITTEE

Mayor Suggests, However, That City Can't Afford New System Now

After turmoil....peace and quiet. With the incinerator question eluding under the vote given it two weeks ago, the new "hog-feeding" committee started investigating other methods of garbage disposal at a meeting Friday afternoon. Apparently tired of the weeks of agitated argument over the incinerator, the committee men stuck to the work given it by the council and avoided all irrelevant subjects which might lead to heated debate.

Garbage disposal bids were tabulated, methods used in other cities discussed and a decision was reached to call in the bidders on hog-feeding for further investigation next Wednesday.

There was strong sentiment on the part of the chairman of the committee, W. H. Vanderheyden, and Mayor John Goodland, Jr., to have the council return from its program of city-paid garbage disposal until the city is in a better financial situation. Both felt that it would be better business to organize a plan whereby the city could avoid paying for either collection or disposal until its debt is reduced.

The plan suggested by them was that the garbage collectors now serving patrons in Appleton be organized and licensed so that citizens could get a garbage collection service at a uniform price. Residents who do not wish this service need not use it; those who do could get it by calling city hall. Rubbish would be collected four or six times a year by street department trucks and dumped on a tract of land rented by the city.

Here Are Bids
The lowest bid read yesterday was from Alvin Schulze, route 2, Appleton, five miles from the city, who will take garbage and rubbish for nothing if the city hauls it to his farm; other offers were: Frank Kempe, one-half mile from the city at the end of John-st., who will take all clean garbage, without tin or rubbish, for $2,000 a year; George Defferding, route 1, Menasha, four miles from the city, $2,500 a year; Frank Muller, one mile north of Wisconsin-ave., garbage and rubbish, $3,500; Arthur Hawley, $3,300; miles north of city, garbage, $3,300; "The Greenview Hog Farm, rubbish, $1,800; garbage collected daily by the city and transferred to hog trucks at some designated spot in the city, $5,500; garbage collected daily and taken out to the farm by the city, $2,800; Henry Schwabhausen, city of Menasha, 13 miles from city, garbage, $5,000; and the Appleton Rendering company bid, all garbage and rubbish delivered to the plant, $5,500 a year.

Letters from other cities revealed that Janesville and La Crosse feed their garbage to hogs, at a cost of $5,000 to Janesville and $4,400 to La Crosse. Two Rivers uses its garbage for fill, collection cost $5,000; Fond du Lac dumps in a marsh, cost $20,000; Waunakee and Eau Claire provide dumping grounds, but the residents pay for their own collection; Beloit collects garbage but not rubbish, cost $5,500; Manitowish has a private collector who charges each patron $10 a year for both garbage and rubbish collection; and Green Bay maintains a free garbage and rubbish collection service, the garbage going to hogs.

POULTRY BREEDERS PLAN ANNUAL SHOW

Addition of dogs and cats to the poultry and rabbit show sponsored annually by the Fox River Valley Poultry and Pigeon Stock association was discussed at a meeting of the organization at the George Loos harness shop Friday evening. Tentative dates for the 1931 show are Dec. 9 to 14.

Committees were appointed to prepare catalogues. R. F. Pfund is chairman of the group which will prepare the poultry book. Other members are A. J. Stannard, and Anton Mese. A list of names will appear in the catalogue. Other members of this committee are Henry Boldt, Carl Gelboke and Jay Farish.

It was decided that inasmuch as there are a number of pedigreed cats and dogs in Appleton and surrounding cities, the display of them might add greatly to the interest of the annual show.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH CHIMNEY BURNS OUT

A fireman also was called when fire was discovered in the cushion of a car parked at 113 W. Franklin-st. about 10 o'clock last night. A lone fireman put out the blaze with chemicals and no serious damage resulted. The name of the owner of the car was not learned.

ALLERGY TOUGH ON HAY FEVER, ECZEMA SUFFERERS, CLAIM

Chicago—(P)—It may be important if you have an allergy.

This is especially true, according to Dr. Neilson of Rush Medical college, if one is bothered with such things as hay fever.

Dr. Neilson talked about the allergy yesterday before the annual session of midwest dieticians at the medical school of Northwestern university.

"An allergy," said the doctor "is a hyper-sensitive reaction to certain foods, often resulting in hay fever, eczema, strawberry rash, migraine and chronic coughing."

All of which might have sounded discouraging if the doctor had not added that if one has any of these various ailments—along with an allergy—many of them may be cured by eliminating certain foods from the diet. Without the allergy, however, one cannot expect to affect a cure through diet.

DRY LAW LOOMS BIG IN CAMPAIGN OF '32

In previous messages by the president himself, and that some fundamental change in the language of the amendment is necessary in order to achieve the benefits of prohibition and secure greater respect for the law as well as observance by many more people.

In fact, the Wicksham report is looked upon as establishing firmly the idea that enforcement cannot succeed without public sentiment on its side. Hence any change in its win public sentiment is urged as a necessity.

LARGE FACTION PERTURBED

What Mr. Hoover has done by his message is to make uneasy the entire eastern wing of the Republican party, as well as Republican leaders in states like Ohio and Illinois, who know that the last election of the protest vote against prohibition which can by no means be classed as wet.

Developments are expected soon from the White House. The Hoover message has been spoken of as not intended to close the door against revision. Senator Pess of Ohio, a dry, has said so publicly. But while this is significant as an indication of the wavering of dissatisfaction which has come in here from eastern Republicans, the situation will not be disposed of without an explicit statement to the same effect from President Hoover himself—something, incidentally, which is a foregone conclusion now.

If the president should wait till just before the 1932 convention to announce himself as in favor of revision, he would be regarded in the opinion of many political observers as having been forced to take such a stand, while today he may yet contend that his original statement was not properly interpreted. The discussion on the Wicksham report is still live enough to permit a presidential statement analyzing the whole Wicksham report without prejudice to the president's desire for the retention of the benefits of prohibition. And, politically speaking, "revision" is going to be the Republican platform or else there'll be a split in the party and the Democrats will win the election of 1932 on the same ground.

Attorneys were to make their arguments and the case probably will go to the jury late this afternoon.

FAVOR CHANGE IN RULINGS ON GOLD RESERVES

Report Outlines Principle for Efficient Working of Gold Standard

Geneva—(P)—Recommendations that existing legal stipulations concerning gold reserves be modified, so as to allow central banks liberty of action necessary for conduct of a rational credit policy and to permit an economy in the use of gold are contained in the report of the gold delegation of the league of nations' finance committee published today.

The report, which was communicated to the league council, is the second interim report of the gold delegation. It confines itself to indicating the principle whereon an efficient working of the gold standard principles, must, in the delegation's opinion, primarily depend.

The council directed that the gold be communicated to all nations whether members or non-members of the league.

The reporting delegation pointed out recent changes in the functioning of the gold standard, namely, withdrawal of gold from actual circulation, generalization of the so-called gold exchange standard, and more general adoption of a rigid percentage system.

Other changes mentioned were the increasing importance of New York as a major lending center, and a narrowing of the gold points.

On the whole, the task of the central banks was described as more delicate and more difficult than in the past.

On the other hand, the report says, the forces which lead to international disequilibrium have changed somewhat. Owing to the growth of international indebtedness and more especially the growth of the short term capital fund, the influence of capital and interest movements has increased compared with that of the exchange of commodities.

Frequent Strains on Reserves

Consequently the whole organization has become more sensitive and strains on the gold reserves more frequent. Yet the delegation believes that "an optimum distribution of gold available for monetary uses" may ultimately be achieved if the world comes gradually back to normal conditions and public confidence improves.

To achieve beneficial distributions of gold the delegation recommends, in addition to existing monetary authorities, the setting up of a "national credit policy," a reduction of the existing minimum of gold legally required in the reserves of the central banks, granted that an international understanding on this subject is reached.

It recommends also maintenance of the general practice of not putting gold coin into circulation; close collaboration between central banks; improvement of the mechanism for issue of foreign loans, and promotion of international transactions in existing securities.

A marginal summary of the delegation's recommendations regarding monetary reforms and banking principles says:

"The objects of gold reserves can be secured only if the central banks are allowed adequate discretion.

"The percentage system now in force is too rigid and requires modification.

"Gold movements should normally be allowed to make their effects felt. Unnecessary movement should be avoided and the purchase and sale of gold should normally be restricted. It should not be rendered difficult by operation of a gold exchange system.

Care in Conversion

"Care must be taken in converting foreign assets into gold. Foreign assets of central banks should be as far as possible be concentrated in the central banks. When kept elsewhere the central bank of the market concerned should keep itself informed.

"The obligations of borrowing and lending states are not identical. Borrowing states must maintain conditions necessary for future confidence and devote their borrowings to productive purposes. Lending states must maintain an even flow of capital and lend for productive purposes.

"A regular flow of capital postulate absence of impediments to lending and of serious obstacles to trade.

"The tasks of the central banks will be facilitated by inter-bank cooperation and may be further facilitated in other ways, such as the development of open market operations and the strengthening of their position in the money market."

Dealing with the effects of obstacles to trade, the report says: "Measures designed to permit the free flow of capital may prove harmful rather than beneficial if they are accompanied by restrictions on the exchange of goods and services which constitute the items of current account in the international balance of payments.

"Capital can move only in the form of goods, gold or claims to capital. If the flow of capital is accelerated and that of goods restricted by tariffs or prohibitions, a constant strain on gold reserves and consequently on the structure of credit maintaining national values may be created.

"A similar strain will be caused if a country endeavors to maintain its level of wages or other industrial costs above that at which it can successfully place its goods in foreign markets.

"Adherence to an international monetary standard of once implies and necessitates adherence to an international economic system."

WORK IS NORMAL IN WRITING PAPER MILLS

BY RUBY A. BLACK Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—Employment in the writing paper industry is being kept at nearly a normal level during the depression, according to a statement made by Col. E. A. Franklin, president of the Writing Paper Manufacturers' Association to Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's Emergency Committee for Employment.

Col. Franklin said, "We have long since taken up the question of employment in this industry, and have been able to keep our production up to about an 80 per cent level, and have made no reduction in our skilled help. There is always a slight fluctuation in unskilled help but even in that instance there has been very little change. In this regard, we feel that we are going all we can to meet the situation."

No report on conditions in the newspaper, book, and other kinds of paper industry has been made public yet by Col. Woods, but there is every indication that these branches of the industry may have been harder hit than the writing paper industry.

chinese, and a bag of money accumulated in the raids at Greenleaf, Wrightstown, High Cliff and Sherwood, were held as evidence.

Three of the boys were arrested at the Grill restaurant on E. College-ave here about 12:30 Friday morning after Officer Gus Herseford found the stolen car which they used in the robberies, parked in front of the place.

Officer Herseford called the police station for help, and Officer Carl Schmitz responded. Officers Joseph Rankin and George Behrendt also were called into duty. Officer Behrendt guarded the rear door of the restaurant to prevent escape while the other three policemen entered the place and captured the trio.

The other two members of the group were taken from the train at DePere by Officer Leslie Putnam of that city, who brought them to Appleton. Officer Putnam made the arrest on being notified by police here that the boys were on the train.

The stock of the gun, which the boys used in the robbery, was turned over to police yesterday by the owner of the car on whose running board the group had discarded it. The boys told police they threw the barrel of the gun from their car somewhere within a radius of five blocks of the Chicago and North-western depot. Police have asked who ever finds the barrel to bring it to the police station.

PLAN SERIES OF FARMERS' MEETS

Expect to Acquaint Dairy-men With Details of New Cooperative Group

The special committee planning organization of the Appleton producers association of the Pure Milk Products association, a cooperative met at the court-house last night with Gus Sell, county agent, to discuss plans for securing members. Frank Reimer is committee chairman. The members planned a series of 14 meetings in this vicinity during the week of Feb. 9 to 14. A member of the committee will have charge of the local meetings and efforts will be made to have farmers attend who were not present at the general meetings which have been held in Appleton.

The local meetings will be held as follows: Greenville, Greenville, Grange, Stephensville, home of George Schmidt, town of Center, Appleton Creek, Freedom, Neenah, Twelve Corners, Larsen, Five corners, Kaukauna, Darby, Sherwood and Appleton. The dates and time of the meetings will be announced later.

10 CASES PLACARDED IN CITY LAST MONTH

Ten cases of contagion were placarded, five quarantined and one reported to Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer, during December, the monthly report of the health department shows. The list included eight cases of chicken pox, one case of measles, whooping cough, diphtheria and tuberculosis, and four of scarlet fever. Twenty-three homes were released during the month.

Mr. Sanders tested 61 samples of milk and cream, inspected four stores, two candy kitchens, two meat markets, two homes and 23 dairies, and investigated nine complaints.

Dr. F. T. Dehnert, city physician, registered 57 births, 25 deaths, 12 marriages and issued 40 burial permits. He made five cultures, attended three confinement cases, made 250 telephone calls and 203 visits to the city home, hospital, police department, poor department and homes of indigents.

Los Angeles—(P)—Eloise Taylor, New York state actress, and Pat O'Brien, actor brought here from New York to play in the film version of "The Front Page," were married here yesterday.

Miss Gertrude Kowalki, 1417 W. Second-st., who submitted to an operation Monday at St. Elizabeth hospital, is recovering.

CAN'T AFFORD GARBAGE PLANT, MAYOR CLAIMS

Tells Sixth Ward Voters That City's Debt Should Be Reduced First

Appleton cannot afford an incinerator for garbage disposal now, Mayor John Goodland Jr., told Sixth ward voters at a meeting last night at Roosevelt junior high school. The meeting was called by the Sixth Ward Voters club to discuss city problems.

Alderman Harvey Kitterer of the Sixth ward also spoke against the incinerator, approving the mayor's plea for reduction of the city's debt before building such a plant. Alderman Philip Vogt, also of the Sixth ward, spoke in favor of the plant, pointing out it had to be built sooner or later.

Although no official action was taken, the voters indicated their approval of expenditures by the city for the 120th field artillery and the high school bands. The evening's program opened with a concert by the artillery band, Edward P. Mumford, director, outlined problems of conducting the organization. E. C. Moore, director of the high school band, summarized what had been accomplished with the high school organization, and asked continued support.

The need for a new high school for Appleton and adequate facilities for handling the increasing enrollment in all city schools was discussed by B. J. Rohan, high superintendent of school. He quoted figures and findings in recent surveys.

SOAP SCULPTURE ON EXHIBIT HERE

Prize Winning Examples on Display at Lawrence College Library

Prize winning examples of soap sculpture are on exhibition on the second floor of the Lawrence college library. They are selected from five thousand entered in the Sixth Annual Competition of Small Sculptures in White Soap, for a soap company's prizes, which were recently exhibited in the American Anderson Galleries in New York City. The exhibition includes sculptures by professionals and amateurs both adult and children, throughout the United States and Canada, Porto Rico, Hawaii and six foreign countries. There are several prize winning pieces in the group. The collection will remain on exhibition during the next two weeks.

White soap as a medium for sculpture achieved prominence with the First Annual Competition six years ago. Since then it has grown in popularity with both professional sculptors and architects for experimental models, and with amateurs who make soap carvings for their own amusement and for home decoration. The educational value of soap sculpture has been recognized by directors of museums, art schools and other educational groups, and it has become an accepted part of the art courses in many public and private schools throughout the country.

SPANISH WAR PENSIONS TOP CIVIL WAR'S LIST

Washington—(P)—More veterans of the war with Spain and their widows are now receiving pensions than survivors of the civil war.

While death thins the ranks of the pensioners of the war between the states, advancing age and infirmity is increasing steadily the number of those seeking aid from the pension bureau on the basis of the later conflict.

December's report carried 296,059 civil war pensioners, receiving $10,377,559, and 222,313 Spanish war beneficiaries, getting $10,227,226.

On Dec. 1, there were 45,338 Union veterans, but 30 days later only 44,659 were listed. Spanish war veterans on the other hand, rose from 183,170 to 189,809.

Six hundred and fifty civil war veterans died; one was added; 1,351 widows succeeded and 235 were added to the roll.

Spanish war veterans, lost 266 by death, but 329 were added; there were 31,809 widows, with 316 recruits and 75 losses, 48 by death.

Princess Of Monarchist Russia Replies To Reds

Detroit—(P)—A princess of old Russia yesterday faced an audience dotted with hecklers of Communist sympathies, said "damn" and flung back the answers to their questions about political conditions in her country.

The princess was her royal highness, Alexandra Kropotkin, direct descendant of Rurik, first czar of all the Russians. She was the speaker on one of Detroit's regular town hall programs.

Princess Alexandra had finished her comments on Russia of the Soviet as compared with Russia of the czar. A dozen voices started to ask questions. A woman's voice rose above the rest, asking whether Russia would have been any better off to have adopted the ideas of the speaker's father, Prince Peter, who was exiled by the Romanoffs. The princess drew herself up and advanced to the footlights.

"I think it damned outrageous that you dare to put that question," she said.

"My father was put in prison by czarist authorities. He was compelled to eat bread on which rats had gnawed. He had to give up his scientific and court stand in Russia because he would not see eye to eye with the Romanoffs in their treatment of the peasants, and he was exiled."

Referring to the alleged activities of Soviet agents, the princess told her questioners "my contention is that it is much easier to take good pay for promoting an ideal than it is to suffer exile and die for one."

SUPERIOR KNIT MILL TO CLOSE DOWN ON JAN. 27

Between 20 and 25 Persons Out of Employment When Operations Cease

Suspension of operations by the Superior Knitting Works division of the Appleton Woolen Mills on Jan. 27, has been announced by F. J. Harwood, president and general manager of the woolen mills. Inability to profitably continue the manufacture of knitted goods prompted this action, Mr. Harwood said.

Between 25 and 50 persons will lose employment by closing of the plant, a gradual suspension of operation having been going on for some time with resultant layoff of help.

The knitting goods division of the Appleton Woolen Mills was started in 1900, the plant having been purchased from a Michigan company and then known as the Lake Superior Knitting Works. It later was known as the Superior Knitting Works and more recently as the Superior Knitting Works Division of the Appleton Woolen Mills.

Future plans of the owners of the plant are indefinite. They do not intend to dismantle the plant and machinery immediately, but if a market for it develops the equipment will be sold, Mr. Harwood stated.

Letters advising the wholesale and retail trade of suspension of plant operations now are being sent out.

IDEAL WEATHER ON MENU FOR WEEKEND

Ideal spring weather is due to prevail in this vicinity over the weekend, the weatherman predicted for Saturday night and Sunday.

Skies will be clear and moderate temperatures will be recorded, he says. Similar predictions have been circulated throughout the middle-west winds are shifting in the south and southwest, a good indication that warmer weather is on the way.

At 6 o'clock Saturday morning the mercury registered 20 degrees above zero, while at noon it registered 31 degrees above zero.

Burhans was credited with a great defensive game for the winning team while DeYoung, goalie, spent a pleasant evening doing nothing. The Independents are seeking games with other valley teams. Games can be arranged by calling Leonard Burhans, 2335.

Members of the Independent squad are: Lefty Kranzsch, center; Gelboke, Grishaber, Jensen and Reifke, wings; Burhans, Wydotzki, defense; Clem DeYoung, goal.

Joseph DeNoble Arrested at Corner of Mason and Commercial-sts

Joseph DeNoble, 919 E. Winnebago-st., pleaded guilty when arraigned in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg this morning on charges of drunken driving. Preliminary hearing was set for next Wednesday and DeNoble furnished bonds of $100.

DeNoble was arrested about 8 o'clock Saturday morning at the corner of Mason and Commercial-sts when Sergeant John Duval and Officer Albert Deligan alleged they found him driving his car in an erratic manner.

LOOK OUT FOR SNOW SLIDES, SAYS ALBRECHT

The hazard of landslides of thawing snow and heavy iceicles dropping from buildings, chimneys and pediments, was pointed out Saturday morning by Theodore Albrecht, street commissioner. Property owners, particularly those in the business district, are urged to inspect their buildings and remove any heavy accumulations of snow or iceicles which might be in danger of dropping on pedestrians when the thaw loosens them from the roof.

He also asked property holders to scatter salt, sand or ashes on slippery sections of walk, particularly on the icy spots caused by eaves dripings.

Judge Seeks Help For 5 Motherless Children

after the death of their mother and were placed in the home of neighbors in the vicinity so they could attend school together. They range in age from four to twelve years.

This week, however, the plans were disrupted when the children became afflicted with the disease and the neighbors refused to care for them, fearing the disease will spread to their own families.

Judge Heinemann said the five children are to be delivered to his court Monday and he must find a home for them by that time. The disease they are afflicted with is not serious and can easily be cured by proper care, the judge added. The county will pay for the work.

PHOTOGRAPHS BIRD'S HEART AS IT BEGINS TO BEAT IN EMBRYO

Cleveland—(P)—A bird's heart, as it begins its first timid and hesitant beats in its career of inspiration for future song, has been caught by the micro-movie camera here.

The movie is taken to the embryo, which is dissected from the egg about one or two days after incubation has started. The movie producer is Dr. Bradley M. Pattern, professor of embryology, Western Reserve university's medical school.

In the micro-movie the embryo is shown floating in the liquid of the egg. The embryo, microscopic in size, appears on the screen like a giant tadpole or fish, about 5 to 6 feet long. The heart—a simple, transparent, bulbous tube, occupies a large part of the picture.

At this stage nothing moves but the little bulb. The beating starts before the blood is ready for circulation. The tiny heart seems to be trying out its strength—it is timid and hesitant—its beating is intermittent and irregular. Sometimes the pulsation stops for long intervals, and then renews its intermittent action.

GREAT CHANCE TO LAY FOUNDATION FOR FORTUNE NOW

Year Will Offer Many Opportunities, Babson Tells Investors

Babson Park, Fla.—A few years from now we will look back on 1931 as a year of outstanding opportunities. Those who have the wisdom and foresight to take advantage of those opportunities will lay the basis of independent fortunes in later years. On the other hand, those who can see no farther than today, or next week, or next month, will have many regrets. Only once or twice in a lifetime do the various economic factors combine to force values to such low levels as now prevail. This applies to stocks, bonds, commodities, general business, building costs, farm lands, and crops.

Many people cannot get the psychology of the present out of their minds. It is a "fear" psychology, and unconsciously people project it into the future, where it has no lawful place. I do not mean that business necessarily will have a swift recovery. Prospects, on the other hand, favor irregular business activity during 1931 rather than rapid and sustained advances. On the other hand, there should be distributive business by the early part of 1932 and progressive improvement from then on. 1931 is the time to purchase, as occasion develops, good stocks, commodities needed in one's business, bonds, certain good real estate, selected farm lands, etc. Present conditions should be judged in the light of the business cycle, remembering that the pendulum of prices has swung too low, and must again swing higher.

Depression Was Thorough

Remember that business will not always remain at these depressed levels. The actual volume of production and distribution is running 77 per cent below normal, a new record low, and slightly under the bottom level recorded in the depression of 1920-21. The deflation of prices has also been thorough-going.

Farm products, as a group, are now only 7 per cent above the pre-war level. Individual crops have fallen much further. Wheat is the lowest since 1896, cotton since 1915. Textiles average only 5 per cent above pre-war. The composite of metal prices is only 6 per cent above pre-war. Building materials and chemicals are only 25 per cent above. A group of miscellaneous industrial commodities, all of which are important, is averaging in price 11 per cent below the 1913 level.

Wholesale commodities in general are now only 15 per cent above the extremely low 1913 and 1914 depression prices, as compared with 45 per cent above in 1929. Copper is the lowest since 1897. While the long range trend of commodity prices is downward, it is quite obvious that there will be an intermediate upward swing as a rebound from the present extreme deflation. Such a rebound is in accordance with the movements of commodity prices from the time when their records were first kept. Wide-awake purchasing agents will be quick to see the outstanding opportunities in the commodity fields and make their purchases accordingly.

Deflation Gone Far

In the financial field the deflation has been just as thorough-going. Brokers' loans have declined for thirteen consecutive weeks and are now the lowest since December, 1924. Instead of a brokers' loan total of $8,800,000,000 at the peak in 1929, the current figure is around $1,900,000,000. We are on much firmer ground financially. The extent of the decline in stock prices depends on what average is used, but it is probably true that the actual average level of all stocks is now as low as it was in 1921. Selected groups, like the Dow-Jones Average, are at the 1926-27 level.

Considering the growth of corporate assets in recent years, and considering the very low money rates, current prices of good stocks appear well deflated, and at a level comparable low with that of previous major bear markets.

This does not mean that some stocks may not go lower, but surely a firm foundation is being laid for a later rise in stock values. In previous articles I have pointed to the outstanding opportunities in the bond market. The temporary slump in bond prices which began the first of October and continued through the middle of December has been checked, and bonds have moved upward slightly since that time. It seems extremely probable that the bond market should continue to improve.

Urges Budget Control

Budget control of business is especially necessary in this period. Efficiency is at a premium. The firm that works according to a carefully laid budget will be the best able to capitalize present opportunities, without becoming top-heavy in any one direction. Commodity prices must be studied, and the budget must make allowances for heavier buying of these commodities where unusual bargains appear. A liberal allowance for advertising should also be set aside. Advertising is the greatest business stimulant that any concern can enjoy. Business men should check all leaks of income through unprofitable or wasteful channels. This applies particularly in the field of distribution. By all means have your budget a flexible one which will take into account changing business conditions. While past records are a good guide in setting up a business budget, they should not be regarded as infallible. Consider also currently developing situations in the commodity markets, the security markets, labor conditions, and general business.

As for business, so for the individual, budgeting is the only sure way of capitalizing present opportunities without running the danger of over-

BODY RECOVERED FROM FOX RIVER AT OSHKOSH

Oshkosh—(AP)—The body of Frank J. Jungwirth, 35, was recovered by police here Friday from the Fox river. The officers were directed to the spot by a passerby who found tracks leading to a hole in the ice but none returning. Jungwirth left his home Thursday night saying he was going fishing. His fishing pole was found in his automobile.

NEW DEAN READY TO ASSUME DUTIES AT FARM COLLEGE

Chris L. Christensen Starts Work at State University in Spring

Madison—(AP)—A new cycle in the 44-year history of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture will begin here in the spring when Chris L. Christensen becomes its third dean.

The deanship of the college is one long service. Dr. William A. Henry was first, assuming the chair in 1887 coincident with the college's founding. His was the duty of organization and through his efforts over a score of years, Wisconsin's farming learned agriculture could be scientific. Dr. Harry L. Russell followed Dean Henry in 1907, and served until last July when he resigned to become president of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation.

Dean Christensen is coming to Wisconsin as a recognized authority in cooperative marketing, after serving as executive secretary of the federal Farm board since its establishment July 15, 1929. For three years prior, he had headed the division of cooperative marketing in the bureau of agricultural economics for the United States department of agriculture.

He is 36 years old and was born and reared on a farm near Minden, Neb. He was graduated from the University of Nebraska college of agriculture and has done post graduate work at the University of Copenhagen in Denmark and at Harvard university, where he specialized in economics and business administration.

As a research fellow of the American-Scandinavian foundation to Denmark, Dean Christensen studied the economic development of Danish agriculture and cooperative organization. He also acted as research agent in the United States department of agriculture to investigate agricultural marketing among farmers in Denmark, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland and England.

One of the leaders in the organization of the American Institute of Cooperation, Mr. Christensen took an active part in the 1925 and 1926 sessions of the cooperative marketing which were held at the Universities of Pennsylvania and Minnesota under the auspices of that organization. He is author of a number of publications on cooperative marketing, his most recent being "farmers cooperative associations in the United States."

Dean Christensen recently was married to Miss Cora Wells March, of Litchfield, Minn. His ancestry is directly traceable to Henrik Ibsen, Norwegian dramatist, and poet, through his mother, whose maiden names was Hilda Ibsen.

Dublin—Beggara, the Irish have declared a war on swearing! Dublin justices recently announced a campaign against vulgar and profane language and every week somebody is brought before the courts and fined a few dollars for not keeping his tongue in his cheek.

loading on any one type of investment. Many investors who failed to budget their income and investments sufficient liquid funds to grasp the 1929-30 now find they have no opportunities which are arising. Start 1931 on a different plan! Budget your living expenses, and make your income provide for an accumulation fund, which can be invested in insurance, bonds and stocks, and other ways.

No matter whether your income is $1500 or $50,000, you can build a financial estate only through following a definite budget plan.

Here Is Fund Budget

In handling this accumulation fund it is obvious that the stock market should be let severely alone by those with small or medium incomes. They should confine their savings to bank deposits, insurance, and bonds. An increasing percentage can be devoted to stocks as incomes increase.

Income	Percent of Income	Insurance	Bonds & Savings	Stocks
$1,000	5	$50	$25	$0
1,500	6	75	37	0
2,000	7	100	50	0
2,500	10	200	50	0
3,000	15	225	225	0
3,500	15	250	275	0
4,000	15	275	225	0
5,000	20	450	250	0
7,500	27	500	1,000	400
10,000	32	300	1,700	600
12,500	35	1,000	2,150	1,000
15,000	45	1,300	4,500	1,400
20,000	50	1,700	5,000	2,300
25,000	55	1,900	6,100	4,000
30,000	55	2,000	7,500	5,500
40,000	50	2,000	10,000	8,000
50,000	50	2,500	12,500	15,000

Present conditions suggest that one should now have as full a quota of insurance and bonds, but only about 50 per cent now invested in common stocks. The remaining 50 per cent of the stock fund should be kept liquid for further purchases as special opportunities arise.

Business by the Babsonhart now registers 27 per cent below normal compared with 7 per cent below normal at this time a year ago.

HULL AMENDMENT SPEEDS UP PROBE ON CHAIN STORES

Increased Funds to Permit Completion of Work Year Earlier

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—The investigation of chain stores will be completed a year earlier than was expected because Rep. Melvin Hull of Black River Falls has the nerve to do what an older congressman would have appropriation bill on the floor of the House without committee approval—and because his proposal is being continued in the next fiscal year.

Rep. Hull last year won the passage of an amendment adding more than $140,000 to the Federal Trade Commission's funds for investigating chain stores and public utilities, although the Bureau of the Budget and the Committee on Appropriations had not approved the increase, and this year the committee added $150,000 to the amount approved by the budget to speed up the chain store probe.

With the $150,000 additional during the fiscal year, the commission will employ four economists and specialists, at $2,500 each; 20 clerks and machine operators at $1,600 each; two statistical machine supervisors at $2,000 each; and will spend an additional $25,000 to travel $15,000 for tabulating and computing machines, and $5,000 for more desks and other office furniture and equipment—all to be used on the chain store investigation.

47 Jobs Open

That makes 47 people who will get jobs sometime after July 1 because Rep. Hull knew no better than to start something last year. Furthermore, officials of the commission said they made extensive additions to their staff after the Hull amendment was passed last spring.

The preliminary report on the chain store investigation will be made to Congress about next Dec. 1, and the final report by June 30, 1932 because of the added funds. And when Rep. Hull came to Congress, he did not even know the trade commission was investigating chain stores!

Rep. John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, majority floor leader of the House of Representatives, is getting great enjoyment out of telling in the lobbies a wisecrack made by the dean of the House of Representatives, Henry Allen Cooper of Racine.

It was "unanimous consent" day when minor amendments taken up and considered only by unanimous consent. On such days Rep. William H. Stafford of Milwaukee takes a prominent part in the proceedings. He studies each bill and report carefully, guards the Treasury and various principles which he considers essential to just legislation. He questions the authors of bills; often he blocks their passage.

Rep. Cooper, according to Rep. Tilson, stuck his head in from the Republican cloakroom and inquired, "Is Stafford still in session?"

Everybody who watches the House function appreciated the joke.

Abolish Postoffice

Another Wisconsin post office has been abolished as part of the Post Office department's economy program. This time it is Planet, which will cease to be on Jan. 31.

Title to four plots of ground for the site of the South Milwaukee post office has been cleared, so that steps can now be taken to start work on the project.

Dr. A. R. Rasmussen of LaCrosse, who is deeply interested in wild life conservation, was visitor in Washington during the past week on his way home from New York.

The estate of Joseph Schneider, Milwaukee, is to get back $38,817.35 because it paid that much in excess of what was due to the federal government in inheritance taxes. The overassessment is caused by the allowance of a credit for state inheritance taxes paid after filing the federal estate tax return.

Three Wisconsin men will enter the Army's Primary Flying School at March Field, Riverside, Calif., on March 1 as flying cadets. They are Kenneth Griener of Madison, Charles Stanchfield of Fond du Lac, and Private Stanley W. Salaty of Milwaukee, now in the 12th Cavalry at Fort Riley, Kans.

When they successfully complete an eight months' course at March Field, they will be transferred to the Advanced Flying School at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex., for four months' instruction in the finer points of flying such as a military aviator is required to perform. When they graduate from Kelly Field, they will be commissioned second lieutenants in the Army Air Corps Reserve, and rated at airplane pilot.

Wisconsin men who have recently accepted commissions or promotions in the Army reserves include: Matthew White Mitchell of Fond du Lac and Oscar Arthur Molden of Monroe, captains, Infantry; Carl Otto Eversen of Deloit and Walter Frank Chalmers of Beloit, first lieutenants, Field Artillery; and John Hutton of Oshkosh, first lieutenant, Medical Corps.

When Wallace Wool and Jonathan Peterson Adams of Green Bay, second lieutenants, Field Artillery; Frank Morgan Strong of Madison, and Chester Parker Allen of Deloit, second lieutenants, Infantry; Eugene Robinson of Deloit, second lieutenant, Infantry; and Robert Hiram Finney of Fond du Lac, second lieutenants, Quartermaster Corps.

DRUG FIRM FOUNDER AND YACHTSMAN IS SUMMONED BY DEATH

Captain Isaac E. Emerson Succumbs at Home in Maryland

Baltimore, Md.—(AP)—Captain Isaac E. Emerson, organizer of the Maryland Naval reserves, internationally known yachtsman and founder of the drug company that bears his name is dead at the age of 71. A complication of diseases terminated an illness of two months duration.

With him when death occurred late yesterday afternoon at his home in Brookland Wood Green, Spotsylvania county, where he had entertained prominent guests from all parts of the world, were his wife and a daughter.

He was a native of North Carolina, a graduate of the state university there, and built himself a great business from a humble beginning. He started as a clerk in a drug store and there compounded a headache formula that later made him famous. He marketed it first on a small scale and later on a commercial basis.

The business established he devoted himself to travel and recreation. In this field he was especially interested in yachting and several times circumnavigated the globe in his own boats and over regular transportation routes. In 1894 he organized the Maryland Naval reserves. Later he attended the naval war college at Newport and at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war he provided the entire crew for the United States ship "Dixie." He too entered the service and was commissioned a lieutenant and assigned as assistant to the chief of the auxiliary naval force. He was engaged in assembling a fleet of speedy yachts for coast patrol service. After the war he maintained the Maryland Naval reserves and was elevated to a captaincy.

He was a member of the Royal Yacht club of Belgium, the New York and Maryland Yacht clubs, the Societe Nautique de Nice and numerous hunt and jockey clubs. He was a thirty-second degree Mason and a Shriner.

Captain Emerson maintained three estates: one at Narragansett pier, Rhode Island, one on the Waccamaw river in South Carolina, and one in Baltimore.

He was twice married. His first wife was a daughter of W. F. Askew of Raleigh, N. C. She was a widow and had two children and divorced him in 1911. He then married Mrs. Anne Preston McCormick of New York, who survives him. His daughter is now Mrs. Charles Minot Amory, who as the wife of Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt, was a social leader in New York and Newport. He is also survived by a brother and two sisters.

The manufacturer of Bromo Seltzer gave liberally to charities in the city and to educational institutions. He came to the city in 1891. The funeral arrangements have not been completed but it was indicated today the service would be held tomorrow.

BILL ASKS CREATION OF STATE CRIME BUREAU

Madison—(AP)—The creation of a state crime bureau to curb crime will be asked in a bill to be submitted to the legislature by the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work.

Sub-committees of the conference held meetings here yesterday at which a draft of the proposed bill was drawn and discussed. Judge A. H. Reid, Waunakee, presided at the meeting of the committee yesterday. Under the proposed bill, the crime bureau will be created under the supervision of the state board of control and will consist of a superintendent, an identification expert and six deputies each in charge of six districts of the state.

A laboratory and library for the analysis and interpretation of evidence will be asked for the bureau, as will an annual appropriation of $50,000. The bureau will deal with felony cases, the committee said.

Under the committee's bill, the bureau superintendent will be authorized to hire civilians for highway observation and reporting service, and to appoint special deputies for emergency service. The superintendent would also provide and maintain special equipment for alarm, pursuit, arrest and defense of officers.

Another subcommittee recommended the use of the state reformatory at Green Bay as an auxiliary state prison. Under this plan the reformatory would be transferred to the industrial school for boys at Wauchesa.

Two girls in Rochester, Minn., 13 and 14, claim to have ridden a teeter-totter 2 1/2 hours.

INCREASING INCOME TAXES

As a prelude to the administration measure increasing the share of the burdens of government in Wisconsin to fall upon incomes, Governor LaFollette said in his message: "We still raise from 65 to 70 per cent of all of the revenue of state and local government from taxes upon tangible property. Seventy per cent of this property is held by farmers and home owners." Assuming the accuracy of these figures, it is not inappropriate that a greater share of the cost of government should fall upon incomes.

Every resident of Wisconsin who receives dividends from companies located outside the state now pays an income tax thereon to this state, but if the dividend comes from a Wisconsin corporation that has just paid an income tax on that very profit it is exempt from further tax in the process of turning it over to the stockholder. The measure which Governor LaFollette has recommended will make this dividend in the hands of the stockholder pay an income tax. Many reasons of equity may be urged against this recommendation but the reasons that may be urged against increasing income taxes in other fields are greater. Plausible and ingenious arguments without end can be made to support almost any tax theory. The recommendation of the governor is certainly within the field of reasonable debate, and therefore of propriety.

But the unfortunate thing about the whole procedure is that the state has faced similar situations in the past, corrected them, only to so conduct its affairs as to make unavoidable the creation of further similar conditions, requiring correction.

When the income tax law was passed in Wisconsin twenty years ago the moneys received from this source were going to save the farmer and the small home owner from the heavy burden then existing. But they did not. They seemed rather to create but another avenue of expenditure for the government.

Six years ago when the burden upon real estate had again seemed disproportionate, the personal property offset was dropped or rather personal property was returned to the tax rolls and those who were in business not only paid taxes on the tens of millions of dollars worth of merchandise on hand, which they did not want and only secured to sell, but also paid taxes on the profit they made in its sale. Again the farmer and the small home owner were to be relieved by this increasing amount of tax money. But they were not.

There is a way to correct these recurring situations in spite of the fact that the expense of the government, with multiplying population and problems, must continue to itself increase. We must come to the proposition of limiting this increase in expense to the increase in value of the property within the state as shown by the assessment rolls and the increase in wealth of its people as shown by income tax returns. Careful management in business always sees to it that the growth of expense does not get out of proportion to the growth of business, and the state government, if as carefully operated as a private undertaking, must see to the same thing. It must be recognized as a true economic fact, and entirely aside from political controversies or clashes, that there is a limit to taxation beyond which it becomes the means of dulling, if not deadening, the very source of life upon whose vitality it depends.

RED CROSS AID

The decision of the Outagamie county chapter of the American Red Cross to assist destitute Indians at Oneida to the extent of $500 is thoroughly in accord with the purposes for which the fund was subscribed. The Red Cross, in peace time, exists primarily to extend relief to mass suffering, wherever it might be, and this decision of the county chapter is a recognition of the fact that conditions requiring help might exist close to home.

In addition to providing money for the Indians, the Red Cross also has undertaken to secure clothing and bedding from other sources to provide some measure of comfort for the needy. All of these activities are characteristic of the Red Cross and deserve the support of the community.

But, in addition to ministering to the needy near home, the Red Cross also is appealing to the people of this community to contribute to the fund for sufferers in the areas seriously affected by the drought of last summer. Appleton's quota has been fixed at $1,000 but thus far there has been little or no response to the appeal.

President Hoover and other American leaders are united in an appeal to the American people to contribute liberally to this fund. Investigation has disclosed a condition that if not immediately relieved might result in a serious calamity.

However good its intentions are, the Red Cross cannot function without the support of the people, and this support, for the average man and woman, is expressed in terms of money given in response to its appeals. The Red Cross needs that kind of support now to carry on the big work before it.

CALIFORNIA AND SUTTER'S GOLD

On January 24, 1848 gold was discovered at Sutter's mill near Coloma, California, and the world was set afire. Johann August Sutter, the first multimillionaire in this country, was a ruined man.

At the beginning of the year 1848 Sutter was riding the crest of the wave, lord of an empire of fertile fields in the rich Sacramento valley, possessor of countless herds of pedigreed cattle, barns, granaries, storehouses filled to overflowing, mills, tanneries, hundreds of workmen and tenants, and thousands upon thousands of acres.

And then on that fatal day, a chance blow by a pick where a mill was being constructed on Sutter's Creek turned up nuggets of gold, and the inland empire of Sutter crumbled in the dust.

The news of the discovery electrified the world. Sutter's army of workmen and tenants deserted, and the hills around Sutter's mill were soon alive with men digging and panning for gold. California! San Francisco! Sutter! These three names flashed around the world into the most secluded hamlets. The lust for gold, the spirit of adventure were born again in the hearts of men, and from every point on the globe they turned their steps toward the promised land. The California gold rush was on.

By every route they came. Around the Horn, across the fever-infested swamps of Panama, from every port—Italians, Germans, Swedes, Englishmen, Russians, Siberian peasants, South Americans and our own people by foot and in wagon from beyond the plains and deserts of the middle west, all seeking the new El Dorado.

Sutter's plantations and fertile fields were in the path of this advancing horde, and were overrun, pillaged and destroyed as if by the devastating march of an invading army. New towns sprang up like magic. In less than seven years the population of these towns were numbered by hundreds of thousands, and San Francisco became one of the great capitals of the world.

Millions of dollars in gold were sluiced and panned from the creeks and river bottoms of the country. Many men made fortunes, yet countless others were destroyed in the desert, the fever swamps of Panama, by disease and starvation. The adventurous pathways of the world were strewn with the spirits of strong and hopeful men and women who failed.

An empire, Sutter's New Helvetia was destroyed. But a new empire, greater, vaster, more lasting was erected. California! Sutter! What names to conjure with in the romance of the world.

Today's Anniversary

FREDERICK'S BIRTH

On Jan. 24, 1712, Frederick the Great, or Frederick II, king of Prussia, was born in Berlin. At the age of 18 he tried to escape from his father's tyrannical control, but was caught and sentenced to death as a deserter. He was pardoned, however, through the intercession of Charles VII of Austria.

When he ascended the throne in 1740 Frederick adopted a vigorous military policy and in five years he found himself in possession of Prussia, capital of Saxony, and in a position to dictate terms of peace to Austria and Saxony, thereby confirming himself of the possession of Silesia.

NICK, the polite bandit, came to us yesterday morning in a quandary . . . somehow he sees some kind of a connection between two matters of national importance . . . first of all, the Wickersham report came out and now, right on top of it, bounces the drought relief business . . . Nick knows that the Wickersham has something to do with some sort of drought relief, but just what kind of drought relief is another matter . . . anyway he wishes that they'd keep 'em more separated . . . and we have a dirty bunch that the drought relief yelling, while directed toward a good cause, has possibly been stirred up to attract attention away from the Wickersham report . . . well, that might not be a bad idea . . .

The Competition Is Too Stiff

Mexico is beginning a concerted drive to export her beer production to Central America and the West Indies.

Haven't those guys ever heard of the United States?

Wotinnell, wotinnell, a lady has been sent to prison and she only murdered her husband. But that was in Nebraska.

With the exception of the two or three people directly mixed up with the affair, that Fero Mystery Case, involving some of Chicago's political shots, gets merrier and merrier and more mixed up to everyone.

And at least fifty per cent of the residents in small towns within a hundred mile radius of Chicago are setting to work on original hook schemes with which to trap more Chicago innocents.

To think that the Fero hoax came right on top of that faked holdup of the Chicago Union Station. Pretty soon it's going to be a subject for blushing to admit that you come from Chicago.

The editors of nine Cuban papers are quite disturbed by the fact that the government has made them stop publishing. And maybe their advertising managers don't like the idea either.

Tom Mix is on trial for breach of contract. All he's done is yell the prosecution so far, and he doesn't want to pull out a couple of six shooters, blast out the lights, shoot the buttons off the judge's vest and go roaring out the door on a big horse . . . well, we're going to be terribly disappointed.

But maybe since Clara's trial, we've come to expect too much.

A couple of more months and Herb Hoover is going to think that Cal Coolidge did him a dirty trick by not running in 1928.

SPECTATOR

Better I think it is the storm to face
Than snug and warm beside a window pane
Wait idly till the air is clear again,
Watching the warriors move from place to place
Fighting the cruel elements that race;
Better I think it is to bear the pain
And share the struggle with its loss or gain
Than sit, a fragile relic in a case.
At times 'tis good to face the winds that blow,
To bend the head and battle with the storm.
To feel against the cheek the sleet and snow.
There is no thrill in being safe and warm.
'Tis better far to brave the gale than sit
Safe-sheltered at the window, watching it.

Still Busy on Her Patchwork Quilt!

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

A NEW DEAL FOR

HERNIA SUFFERERS

A physician in just as good standing professionally as any doctor who reads this writes:
"There are more than a million people in the United States suffering from hernia (that is, rupture, or as some people call it, breach) to whom the doctors have nothing to offer except a truss or a cutting operation. Only that it would be a useless burden on your time I would like to have you read some of the many tales of woe . . . these pitiful letters have come from patients who have been operated upon from one to three times with recurrence of the hernia in every instance . . ."

The doctor who writes this letter gives ambulant treatment for hernia that is, a series of medicinal injections at intervals of a week to bring about closure of the hernial sac or opening, and hence natural cure. This treatment detains the patient for only a few minutes from his ordinary occupation. It is so simple that any physician anywhere can give it successfully in his office. It is as inexpensive as a similar series of ordinary hypodermic injections would be. Sometimes it fails to cure, but there are as many as 15 per cent of failures in the general run of cases—But if it fails, never mind. No harm done. Better luck next time. This is not quite the situation when the radical surgical method fails. A second attempt with operation is generally less likely to succeed than was the first. A second course of medical injections for hernia would be just as likely to be successful as the first.

Ten years ago I'd have condemned this injection treatment of hernia offhand. I was educated to condemn it. Most regular doctors would condemn it now, without hesitation. But if my readers have any confidence in my judgment I am sure they will find that if I were a hernia patient I should pass by my friends the surgeons and go to the doctor who can and will give me the ambulant treatment. I'd have one whack at it, and if the treatment failed to cure the hernia I'd call the doctor a few hard names, take a short rest, and then go right back for another series of injections.

I'd rather go to the hospital and have my appendix removed again than go to the dentist to have a mere filling. I like operations myself, and I am quite fond of other people's as long as there is no restriction of my air. But if I had hernia the method of choice for me would be the injection method—provided I could have such treatment from a good reputable man. No quacks for me. Without good professional standing does anything he hadn't ought to, you're sunk so far as getting satisfaction from him in court. But when a doctor of good professional standing makes any mistake or neglects you in any way, you can get satisfaction from him in court. So why take any chances with the physicians? I mention this because so many irregular or obscure practitioners are always eager to take advantage of any little suggestions like this. So my final word to the victim of hernia is, have a try at this ambulant or injection treatment, but beware of the charlatan who pretends to promise you a cure. A reliable, honest doctor will not guarantee you the best treatment he can—nevertheless cure, whether you have pneumonia, hernia or flat feet. Whenever anyone "guarantees" a cure or a treatment or a remedy you may be sure you are dealing with a humbug.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Soothie and Calm

I have been doing your belly breathing exercise every night for several months I find it quite all you suggested, for I have been a poor sleeper for years and especially about composing myself to get to sleep when I go to bed. This stunt of yours really seems to bring a celestial sense of relaxation and calm and I generally drop off before I get to the tenth breath. (Ed. T. A.)
Answer—Right you are. You see, natural breathing tends to lower blood pressure, equalize circulation, warm the feet and everything. It is much better bedtime diversion than counting sheep jumping thru the wall or thinking of today's troubles or tomorrow's tasks.

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and mention that you have acne—blackheads and pimples. Most regular girls and boys have 'em more or less in their teens. Don't let it cramp your eating style or make you feel bad. I really believe a reasonable amount of pimples good for a youth. Keeps him or her from getting too vain at a time of life when vanity is very unbecoming.

The Real American

I am 18, and live near the reservation. I want to know if it is right for me to meek—all the boys around here like to meek with the girls with a girl except just one, an Indian boy. He seems the only decent boy here. My parents object to him because he is an Indian. Of course we are white (E. T.)
Answer—Seems to me you are too young to "go with" anybody, daughter. You are confusing calf-love or puppy-love with courtship. As for the Indian boy, perhaps he is the best bet of the lot. However, you had better have a quiet talk with little old mama some time when dad is not around if you make a confidante of mama she will sympathize with you.

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

THE native surely had the knack of padding. As he pushed straight back the small animal moved on with speed and hardly made a sound. "I'll keep in mid-stream, lads," said he. "Then we're as safe as we can be. If we go too near to the shore, the boat might run aground."
"Just take it easy. Don't be scared. Out in the open you'll be aired. Breathe deeply. It will make you grog and also make you strong. I'll do the work and you can rest. I know you lads all like that best. There's naught but fun ahead of us and nothing can go wrong."
"That's fine," said Scouts, with a smile. "But I will paddle after while if you begin to get tired out. I'd like to try my hand. I've rowed a boat, but paddling, I guess, is quite a different thing. However, if you'll show me how, I know I'll understand."
"All right! We'll see," the native cried. "But, frankly, lads, this sort of ride will never tire me out a bit. I'm used to it, you see. And, anyway, when night arrives you'll have the time of your young lives. We'll sleep at shore and put up camp. That's thrilling as can be."
So, on their rode through the day. At meal time Clowry shouted. "Hey, Let's eat a bit. I'm ravenously starved. And it is getting dark." So, up on shore they shortly went and about a half an hour was spent in cooking up some supper. All the bunch thought this a lark.

"Twas such a clear and moonlit night the bunch agreed 'twould be all right to just go on to blankets, and the Tunes soon crawled in. The native, with a voice quite strong, sat up and sang a merry song. He then played on an instrument and made the Tunes grin. (Copyright, 1931, NEA Service, Inc.)

A Bystander

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Drop into the gallery of the house of representatives on Consent Calendar day—that time set aside for disposal of minor legislation—and watch Fiorella La Guardia in action.

It is well worth while—that is, it will be if you enjoy action of the whirlwind variety.

Down near the front this New York congressman usually will be found. Before the table, on the republican side of the aisle, he sits when he is not on his feet bounding around like a rubber ball.

He generally talks more than any one else and on an amazing number of subjects—for his store of information is amazing. It seems that his interests extend in every direction. Columns in the index to the Congressional Record are required to list the topics on which he speaks. And they range from debt settlements to cornstalk paper and back to refuse incinerators.

He bubbles with good humor and gaiety. To see him in action is to get the impression that he gets a tremendous kick out of his job.

In Class By Himself

So some of his colleagues LaGuardia is incorrigible. Others refuse to take him seriously. But they all agree he is in a class by himself. He glories in his stage management. He is a showman, and opportunity seldom presents itself but that he takes advantage of it to display his ability along this line. He has color, vitality, courage, independence and knowledge. It is easy to see why one hears so much of him. Look up his name in the Congressional Directory. Where others use as much as a half-page to outline their past accomplishments, LaGuardia in years has made this simple entry:
"F. H. LaGuardia"
He doesn't even let it be known that his first name is Fiorella, which means "Little Flower."

Sharp Tongued

Sharp tongued, he has a mind quick as a flash and apparently loves nothing better than an interchange of words. Few are his equal in rejoinder. Rarely is he at less for words to put an opponent at a disadvantage. There was, for example, the time when he urged an appropriation for a facade for a building in New York. A colleague, somewhat famed for his handsomeness, opposed it.
"Does the gentleman know what a facade is?" queried LaGuardia.
"Certainly I do," was his opponent's retort. "It is the same thing that a snout is to a porker. It is the face."
"Then," LaGuardia shot back, "if the gentleman would pay less attention to his face and more to what is inside his head he would get along better."

1930, when you added it up, made thirteen. When you add up 1931 at Schmidt's it means lower prices!

A lot of the superstitious brethren are blaming 1930 because the numbers in it added to thirteen. But whether or not black cats and ladders are an important figure in your life, you'll find only joy in the 1931 prices at Schmidt's.

As a matter of fact, the 1931 price level here involves a lot of subtractions—subtractions which go back a couple of decades to find their equals.

Park your worries at the door as you come in tomorrow.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York — A Belgian portrait painter turned bell-ringer is carillonier to the Rockefeller.

He is Kamel Lefevere, who used to play the cello of the late Cardinal Mercier's cathedral church at Malines and now presides over the Rockefeller carillon in Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick's Riverside church, the world's largest set of musical bells.

High up in the skyscraping tower opposite Grant's tomb, Lefevere sits at his curious instrument, pulls his feet on larger pedals to produce pealing hymns that float over the Hudson to be heard as far away as Englewood, N. J.

Carillon Extraordinary

His only wish is that he could hear the sublime music of his carillon. In his semi-sound-proof loft, the tower full of bells make only a loud clanging. It is distance that lends the enchantment to the sound. Lefevere has not really heard a carillon in a long time. And that is regrettable, because his soul is in the bells.

"I wish," he said, "I could recall the pleasure of first hearing a carillon."

Years ago in Belgium, Lefevere (pronounced Luff-ave) as a boy used to go up in the tower of St. Rombold's Cathedral Mercer's cathedral, to wind the drum that played the quarter-chimes and to see Danyan, whom he calls the greatest of living carilloniers, playing.

It was then that he fell in love with the bells. When he was older he became a portrait painter, a member of the Belgian academy, but he learned carillon playing as a hobby. His interest was so intense in the latter that he finally reversed things.

Carillon playing after he studied under Denys, became his vocation, painting his avocation.

He became professor of technique at the Belgian National Carillon school, the only one in the world for carilloniers.

He first came to America in 1924, for recitals at Gloucester and Cohasset, Mass. Then there were only two carillonists in America.

Now there are about 30 and Lefevere is soon to dedicate a new one at Lincoln, Neb.

Muscular Work

Lefevere, a stocky man with a mild countenance, has played almost every carillon in the world. Most of them are in Belgium, home of the art.

The larger bells — the largest weighs seven tons — of the Rockefeller carillon, which has 72 bells, are operated electrically and so too, will be the drum that eventually will play the chimes on the quarter-hours. This drum is like a huge music box, with pegs revolving against a row of comb-like springs.

Carillon playing is one of the most difficult branches of music. No music is written especially for the instrument, so the carillonists must arrange and rewrite the hymns they play.

Carillon playing also involves considerable muscular exercise. After an hour of it Lefevere jumps under a shower bath in the Riverside stable and has a rub-down.

He hopes eventually to establish a carillon school here and train Americans in the unfamiliar art.

Girl Needs Confidence Of Mother

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Aunt Ella, what is it that mother suspects me of doing every time I'm allowed out of her sight?"

"Why don't you ask her?"

"I did and she flew into a rage and called me names."

"Mary, you ought not to bother your mother. She does not feel well and little things trouble her. Your going out with boys and girls is no little thing to your mother."

"What does she think I'll do? For pity's sake, all I do is walk to the schoolhouse with a boy, maybe three of them. Maybe I walk home again with the same ones. Maybe we do walk slowly and monkey a little. I'm not doing anything wrong. What does mother think I will do?"

"Your mother is afraid that you might make a mistake and find yourself in great trouble. It is much easier to get into trouble than it is to get out of it. If your mother knew what would be your fortune it would at least free her of some anxiety. It is the not knowing what may happen to a careless, ignorant girl who insists upon freedom from home and school and conventions that mothers turn gray. Can't you understand how full of fear your mother is for you?"

"Sure I can understand how full of fear she is. What gets me is why she is that way. I can take care of myself. The trouble with all you grown-up people is that you imagine that all boys and girls are obsessed with sex. You seem to think that we think of nothing else."

"Well, you can't blame us, can you, when all your spare time seems to be taken up with affairs and—"

"All my spare time. All this freedom. My dear Aunt Ellen, what you grown-ups need is a little of the school method of research. How much freedom has an adolescent boy or girl who is working like a dog to get ready for college entrance? The teachers are, every one of them, asking for extra work. Mother insists upon my doing certain chores in the house. I have to leave my room ready for the final sweeping and dusting. I have to clear the breakfast table and stack the dishes, give my teeth a last brush, polish my nails, give a last touch to my hair, and run for the car."

"I'm in school until after three with a short period for lunch. I usually eat that standing up and chase off to the club meeting, or the committee meeting to make a report. When the afternoon session is over I usually have to see a teacher, or a chairman of something or other and carry home another job."

"The only time I see a boy long enough to walk with him is the short time between the closing of school and my reaching home. I never go out during the schoolweek, very seldom on Friday evening. If a boy comes to the house mother has a fit. All I want is a little freedom."

"Don't you see that if I wanted to do objectionable things that watching me wouldn't stop me?"

"Why don't you talk things over with your mother?"

"And have a storm of tears, threats, accusations hurled at my head? It's impossible to talk to mother."

"Dear mother, it should not be, it must not be. If you are rearing an adolescent daughter you will have to talk to her and arrive at some understanding for the reward of suspicion is an evil thing."

FLASHES OF LIFE

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York—Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey have some great ideas for their tender foot. Babe visited Jack in a hospital. Said Babe to Jack: "Why haven't you got a sock or two left for some of these birds they call heavyweights nowadays?" Said Jack to Babe: "Why don't you look into that wrestling racket? Can't lose. Be a riot. You got the beef?"

Omroff, Fla. — What difference does it make what kind of a ball a duffer plays with? A great authority on rubber is sure the new balloon thing won't affect the average golfer's game. "It is just as easy to miss a shot as with the old ball," said Harvey Firestone.

St. Augustine, Fla.—Helen Hicks has played the country club in 39-37 with the new ball. The woman's record, two strokes less, was made by Glenna Collett with the old ball.

New York—There's to be a track meet of Martins at Madison square garden Feb. 7. Entered in the MILL-rore A. A. games are Sera Martin of France, Dr. Paul Martin of Switzerland, Sam Martin of Boston, and Orval Martin of Los Angeles.

Waterville, Me.—Wage earners in this city are to donate $1 a week each to a fund with which unemployed will be hired three days a week on civic improvements.

New York—George Reith, a bridge ace, believes the average woman player is better than the average man, but the males excel among the big shots. They keep track of things and deduce better and their hunches are more correct.

Assisi, Italy—Curfew is elaborate in the hillside city of St. Francis. Clad in thirteenth century costumes of red and white doublet and hose with panache hats to match, eight heralds blow silver trumpets in front of the city hall. The notes are audible afar over the Humbrin plain.

Stettin, Germany—The "hall of lords" in the railroad station, once reserved for nobility, is now a dance room for all travelers. A jazz band is on hand. The idea is to make folks like Stettin and not be bored by stopovers between trains.

Venice—Sundry historic palaces along the Grand Canal are for sale. Foreigners who used them during the short summer season are finding them too expensive. Among them are the palace where Robert Browning died, the one in which Lord Byron lived and the one in which Richard Wagner composed some of "Tristan und Isolde."

MORE THAN 19,000 FLU CASES IN U. S., ESTIMATE

Washington—(AP)—An estimate of more than 19,000 influenza cases in the United States was made by public health officials Friday on the basis of reports showing 3,857 recorded for the week ending Jan. 17. "There is an outbreak in Europe as well," Surgeon General Cummings said. "It has abated in Poland and France, but such is evident in Germany and England. Apparently it is in mild form abroad also. The prevalence here is above the normal curve for the season—but not nearly so widespread as in 1928-1929."

The largest numbers of cases reported were as follows:

South Carolina, 1,078; New Jersey, 282; Maryland, 118; North Carolina, 112; Georgia, 158; Tennessee, 121; Alabama, 126; Arkansas, 101; and Oklahoma, 168.

TAX COMMISSION MAN TO RETURN NEXT WEEK

L. J. Rhein, Wisconsin tax commission man who was forced to postpone his reassessment work in Appleton because of illness, will be able to return early next week. It is probable that he will continue his preparatory work until the latter part of February, before calling in the squad of assessors to do the actual field work.

Because of the delay caused by the illness of Mr. Rhein there is some sentiment toward postponing the entire reassessment project until next year, but as yet no council body has discussed the subject.

CONDUCT REHEARSALS FOR FAIRY TALE PLAY

The fairy tale play, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," will be presented on Valentine Day, Feb. 14, at Memorial chapel by the theatre for children. The cast, selected from all over the city by Mrs. F. Theodore Cloak, director of the theatre, includes 19 children and 13 adults.

The play is the first to be given by the theatre for children, a group organized by Mrs. Cloak to provide wholesome, artistic entertainment for both youngsters and adults. Though most of the plays to be presented will be fairy tales, the appeal to adults will be almost as great as to children. Both adults and children will be used in the casts and production staffs, and an attempt will be made to enlist the talents of persons who have never before appeared in stage productions.

A LONG WAIT

Impressive White House Dinner Given For Justices

BY SALLIE V. H. PICKETT

Washington—(AP)—Besides the impressive White House dinner for the supreme court justices on Thursday night, during the week President and Mrs. Hoover had a number of more intimate parties.

One of the most youthful and delightful was a little tea Sunday afternoon when Mrs. Hoover entertained for Miss Eleanor Bryan Smith, and Mr. John Walker Drake, Jr., whose marriage took place the next day. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Drake of Detroit, parents of the bridegroom, were guests. The elder Mr. Drake was an assistant secretary when the president was secretary of commerce. Members of the bridal party were also guests.

Sunday night President and Mrs. Hoover had Former Secretary of State and Mrs. Frank Kellogg, Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg and a few others as dinner guests. The Kelloggs came to Washington to attend the diplomatic dinner two weeks ago.

Senator and Mrs. Vandenberg who have returned to Washington after spending the holidays in their home at Grand Rapids, Mich., will have the youthful governor of their state, Wilbur Brucker, and Mrs. Brucker, as their guests next week. Monday, Mrs. Vandenberg will give a luncheon for Mrs. Brucker, asking the wives of the Michigan senators and representatives to meet her.

Senator Vandenberg is chairman for the big Michigan State society banquet Monday night at the Hay Adams house, with Governor and Mrs. Brucker as guests of honor. The banquet celebrates the ninety-fourth anniversary of Michigan statehood and the governor will deliver the principal address.

Four of Senator Vandenberg's colleagues in the senate who were born in Michigan, Frederick Hale of Mine, Thomas D. Schall of Minnesota, Robert B. Howell of Nebraska, and Royal S. Copeland of New York, will be special guests.

Representative Ruth Bryan of Florida, charming member of the night service at First Baptist church. Mr. Mc Kinney was formerly pastor of First Baptist church of Appleton.

Vets to Meet

A monthly meeting of the Appleton Rainbow veterans will be held Monday night at the Armory. Routine business will be transacted, and a lunch will be served after the business meeting, according to John E. Hantschel, secretary.

house, who turns a cold shoulder to the lighter side of society and confines herself to the affairs of her office, has asked a number of friends to attend a musicale at the Mayflower hotel, Sunday afternoon when she will introduce a southern baritone, Benjamin De Loach of the Philadelphia Opera company.

Mrs. Owen "discovered" Mr. De Loach about four years ago when her sons, John Bryan and Reginald, brought the artist to her attention. His beautiful voice thrilled her, and she gave him unstinted encouragement. His first achievement came when he was one of the national winners in the Atwater Kent audition three years ago and later he received a scholarship at the Curtis Institute of Music. This Sunday afternoon he will make his debut in concert and Mrs. Owen has asked more than a hundred friends, diplomats and officials to hear him.

Mrs. Owen is herself a clever musician and plays the piano and several other instruments. Her husband, the late Major Reginald Owen, was a British officer and she played and sang for the wounded in British hospitals.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

CORRINE was very sure that Bob had not noticed Harry Becker as he came down the steps of Sarah Glade's house. She wondered how much he had seen, and told herself miserably that he must have witnessed the kiss. But if he had, he had also seen her draw away from Bob's arms. Now he would think that she played gaily and carelessly with every man. Harry had always been doubtful of Bob anyway... She opened the door of the car and stepped out wearily.

"Have a good time at the dance, Bob. And say hello to June. The... the gang doesn't have to know that I'm under the ban, does it?"

"Of course not! I'll give you honor," Bob laughed shortly, and Corrine knew he was angry and hurt because she had left. Maybe he was taking June to the dance, but it wasn't June whom he wanted. And with a repulsive feeling Corrine realized that she no longer wanted Bob to want her.

Sarah was curled up in a ball at the corner of the gay davenport when Corrine entered. She opened her gold-brown eyes sleepily and yawned; then listened attentively to the story.

"Well, there's nothing for us to do but get some food. I'm hungry. Powder your nose... it's shiny... and come on."

Harry, she said, had not been there.

Corrine played with the steak and salad, tried to eat, and could not.

Suddenly she looked at Sarah strangely. "Will you go over to my house with me? I'd like to see my family. And I'm afraid I'll give myself away if I go alone."

Mrs. Merrymann's first question concerned Harry. "Is he stopping for your baby, Corrine?"

"Oh, he's busy tonight. Sarah and I are just putting in time."

"Putting in time." She reflected that her mother didn't know what her words were. She was putting in time until what? She couldn't answer that question, either. And maybe she would have to go on, filling all the hours with useless tasks just because nothing else mattered.

Jack came in soon, and fell into a long discussion with Mr. Merrymann. There was a steady shinningness in Sue's dark blue eyes that made Corrine think of gold candles shining under dark waters. She felt so much older than Sue now, so much wiser. And yet so very, very young.

But she hadn't expected Harry to drop in on the circle also. When he came she felt as though her heart and throat were freezing, that she couldn't speak until something warm and burning thawed out. Would Harry give her away, she asked. And even while she did, she knew that he wouldn't.

"Corrine thought you were working. How nice you finished early," Mrs. Merrymann exclaimed.

For a brief second Harry's eyes met Corrine's. The light heamed to Mrs. Merrymann. "It didn't take as long as I had expected. How's everything coming?"

Corrine sat very still, trying to think of an excuse to get away. She couldn't leave when Harry did. She must go first. She signaled to Sarah, and Sarah nodded.

"Come on, Corrine, you promised to help me with a secret tonight and I'm not letting you out just because your husband arrived. He'll have to forge for himself."

Corrine jumped up quickly.

"Oh, but that isn't the way to treat Harry," Mrs. Merrymann murmured.

"He... he just loves to have me treat him that way?" Corrine answered. "And he treats me the same! We like it!"

She makes her child responsible for all the happiness, or unhappiness that comes to her and sooner or later, she is bound to know disillusionment and pain.

You cannot go through the world, unmindful of all that goes on about you. You cannot make a little world of your own forever. Sooner or later you are bound to need some sort of human contacts, some live interests. Sooner or later, your one consuming passion is bound to fail you somehow or other.

You and your husband are happy now because your utter dependence on each other is proof of the extreme love you bear for one another. But you will be far happier if you learn to keep that love and at the same time to let other people into your scheme of existence. You will feel far safer and more secure with your happiness if you do not make it so utterly personal.

Don't be afraid of spoiling your relationship with outside interests and hobbies. You two ought to rejoice in each other's ability to appreciate all the good and beautiful things of life.

Don't make yourselves narrow and self-centered, because you want to keep yourselves to yourselves. If you go on like that, you'll find the world won't let you in when you want to get back again. You'll shut out people so much that they'll never care to be admitted to your friendship again.

A selfish life such as you lead is worse for you than for others since it places you in a dangerous position and makes you depend utterly on the love of one human being. Don't run that risk.

JAPANESE HAVE RIGHT METHOD FOR BATHING

BY ALICIA HART

Japanese make a cult of the bath that Americans might do well to copy. Not that we are not head and shoulders above the rest of the world in our bathroom equipment. We are.

But just how to make the most of all the loveliness that is ours in the name of modern plumbing and pastel coloring is our problem.

The Japanese scrub mightily with soap and brushes and rinse several times before they climb into the bathtub for their soak, which is the last rite in the bath.

There is no question but that they are clean before they begin that soak, which often last a half hour in water so hot that Americans cannot stand it.

I do not advocate such hot water. But there is something wrong with the way we loll in a tub in which we have scrubbed ourselves off and then climb out without rinsing and consider ourselves quite clean.

The Japanese bath consists of taking mildly hot water and soap and brushes or wash rags and thoroughly soaping the body, washing the hands, feet, neck and ears meticulously, before entering for the final rinse. This way you are sure of a thorough cleansing. Scrub yourself very well and rinse off and then get into your tub, which should by all means have a faint scent to lure you and keep you there for a restful relaxing rinse.

If you bathe this Japanese way, you will not require the last shower rinse that the ordinary American bath needs for completion.

It is an excellent way to scrub children up! They enjoy the actual bath so very heartily that often it is difficult to scrub them in the tub, not only because it breaks your bath to stop over but because they want to play with their ducks and boats.

It is an equally effective method for cleansing yourself. Try it once. See if you do not enjoy resting in clear, fragrant bath after the work of scrubbing is all done.

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU

"AQUARIUS"

If January 25th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 5:30 p. m. to 8 p. m. The only danger period is from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m.

January 25th will prove to be a day of contradictions. In the morning, harmony will prevail. In the afternoon, there will be differences that will lead to acrimony. In the evening, peace will again reign, and the day will end as it began.

Children born on this January 25th, will be healthy specimens of humanity, and will be more fond of play than work. Their dispositions will be sunny, but the signs presage that they are not fated to cut any wide swathe in the world. Satisfied with little, they will always have little.

If your birthday falls on January 25th, you possess some excellent characteristics, and some very poor ones. You are a loyal friend, but a bitter enemy. You can be very generous, but, on the other hand, you are at times, very stingy. You can be very kind, but are often quite cruel. You usually are considerate, but sometimes show a decided streak of selfishness. In all the big relationships of life, you are what you should be. In life's small affairs, you reveal a character that repels, rather than attracts.

Very little good is achieved by being splendid, and then removing all the gilt by some trifling act of meanness. It is a waste of time to build a structure with your hands then kick it down with your feet. Little things—those that cause a sting—are remembered, whilst splendid deeds are often relegated to the limbo of forgetfulness.

You are very shrewd, and though your knowledge is superficial, it passes muster with the world in general. You can never be a successful executive because of your attitude to those who work under your orders. You are exacting, without being compensatory. Your obsession, too, to get even with those who do not see eye to eye with you, detracts from your efficiency and interrupts the continuity of your efforts.

Your home life does not hold out much promise of happiness. "Nagging" is bound to prevail. Your variable moods will breed discontent and your inconsiderateness will cause reprisals.

Madison—(AP)—Members of the Northern Wisconsin Cooperative Tobacco Pool will be paid $1,000,000 in advance on the 12th tobacco crop stored in their sheds, according to an announcement in the Pool's bulletin today.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vance

FOLLY OF SHUTTING OUT THE WORLD FOR LOVE'S SAKE

My Dear Miss Vance: My problem is not acute, but it causes me a great deal of thought because of the constant criticism I receive from other people. My husband and I are ideally happy with each other. We have a sufficiency of the world's goods, are able to travel and to do everything we want to. We have decided not to have any children, since we are neither of us willing to give up our freedom for children. We have few friends, because we need only a few. We are quite happy to be alone together and do not care to entertain a great deal. I have one or two friends only and they are constantly telling me that the life I am leading is all wrong. They urge me to entertain and go about with friends. Also they believe that I should have children, and fill my life with interest other than my husband. I argue that so long as I am happy I should do as I like. What do you think? IDA.

Your friends perhaps view your present happiness with the dread that because you are tempting Providence so strongly, you are bound to meet with disaster sooner or later.

You're allowing yourself to become entirely dependent on one person—your husband. Nothing else in the world brings you any happiness. You have carefully shut yourself away from such interests as might distract your unflinching attention to him. You have made him your world, and considering the fact that he is after all an ordinary mortal like the rest of us, you are running a grave risk in doing this.

If anything happens to him, you are mortally stricken. You have nothing to fall back on. Your life is blank because so far you have made it blank except for him. Children would give you someone to go on in life, even if the person or another, he were not your child.

Outside interests, a few real friends, might supply you with the strength to march ahead, no matter what life did to you.

But when you pin all your faith, all your love, all your trust to one human being, you take one almighty chance.

The mother who dotes on her only child, year in and year out, wrapping herself around that child's life and refusing to permit other interests of any sort—that mother asks for trouble and usually gets it. She makes her child responsible for all the happiness, or unhappiness that comes to her and sooner or later, she is bound to know disillusionment and pain.

You cannot go through the world, unmindful of all that goes on about you. You cannot make a little world of your own forever. Sooner or later you are bound to need some sort of human contacts, some live interests. Sooner or later, your one consuming passion is bound to fail you somehow or other.

You and your husband are happy now because your utter dependence on each other is proof of the extreme love you bear for one another. But you will be far happier if you learn to keep that love and at the same time to let other people into your scheme of existence. You will feel far safer and more secure with your happiness if you do not make it so utterly personal.

Don't be afraid of spoiling your relationship with outside interests and hobbies. You two ought to rejoice in each other's ability to appreciate all the good and beautiful things of life.

Don't make yourselves narrow and self-centered, because you want to keep yourselves to yourselves. If you go on like that, you'll find the world won't let you in when you want to get back again. You'll shut out people so much that they'll never care to be admitted to your friendship again.

A selfish life such as you lead is worse for you than for others since it places you in a dangerous position and makes you depend utterly on the love of one human being. Don't run that risk.

NEENAH TURNS BACK KAUKAUNA QUINT, 26 TO 16

Defeat Is Second of Season for Little Team in Northeastern Loop

Kaukauna—Kaukauna high school received a second set back in the Northeastern Wisconsin Inter-scholastic league Friday evening, losing to Neenah 26 to 16. The game, played before a crowd that packed the high school auditorium, was closely fought. Many fouls marred the fracas. Neenah benefitted in the free throwing, making nine, while the Kaws scored six.

Neenah team made use of its experience and caught the Kaws napping several times. The Neenah offense was marked with smoothness and precision. The Kaws rallied several times and were going good in the last half of the final quarter when they dropped three baskets almost in succession.

Barnes and Schmidt, forwards, scored 13 points for their team. Johnson at guard showed up well and garnered five points. Farwell and Dix showed up well for Coach Little's quintet.

The first period opened fast. No points were scored until near the end of the quarter. It came as a result of a foul by a local player. Shortly after, Neenah followed with the first marker of the game. Several fouls were then called on the local team and the period ended with Neenah leading 8 to 2. Four of the points were made on free throws.

Farwell, forward, netted the first basket at the opening of the second quarter. Neither team used much offense. The play and the period was slow. The half ended with the score 9 to 1 in favor of Neenah.

Neenah Resumes Scoring

Neenah started the scoring in the first of the second half with a free throw, on a technical foul. A basket soon followed. Both teams started with offensive plays and action was fast. Kaukauna went out on the floor on a play but lost the ball while leaving a foul court unguarded. A player slipped through with a long dribble and made a basket. Two more points were added via the free throw route. Fouls were called on both teams almost in succession during the entire quarter. Many of them were missed. Farwell made a free throw and Schmidt of Neenah also took a gift shot. Sager bagged another point with a free throw as the quarter ended, with the count 20 to 9.

Kaukauna's best play came in the last quarter. The plays began to flow during the latter part of the period. Dix got in the clear and made a neat shot. Koch immediately followed with another after getting the tip off. Kaukauna was then caught off guard and Neenah tallied with a basket. Dix then scored again just before the final whistle.

The Kaukauna B team lost to Neenah B team 19 to 9 in the preliminary game.

SEEK CHANGE IN NEW BOUNDARY FOR RATE TERRITORY

Petition Filed by Menominee, Marinette and Peshigo With Commission

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — Seeking a change in the boundary separating eastern and western rate territory between Menominee, Mich., and Green Bay, Wis., as established in the Eastern Class Rate Investigation and Western Trunk Line Cases, which decisions became effective Feb. 1, representatives of Menominee and Marinette and Peshigo, Wis., have filed a petition with the Interstate Commerce commission.

Instead of "the west shore of Green Bay" as prescribed by the Commission as the boundary for the distance between Menominee and Green Bay, the petitioning cities want "the line of the Chicago and North Western Railway, along the shore of Green Bay," to serve as the boundary.

The "inadvertent error" which allowed the commission to change the 40-year old boundary between eastern and western territory, will work untold hardship upon Menominee, Marinette and Peshigo, according to the petition. Instead of regulating commerce, the Commission will jeopardize the flow of commerce by creating a new boundary of trade, the complaining cities claim.

If the decision of the Commission is not changed, all shipments from the three cities to the east must take the western scale of rates, which is generally higher with higher percentages of first class rates than the eastern scale, while their competitors at Green Bay, Milwaukee, and other points may use the eastern scale.

Thus, if the Commission refuses the technical change, there will be violent preference in favor of Green Bay and prejudice against Marinette-Menominee, the petition says. Though both are jobbing centers and competitors in this line, the petition states that Green Bay could get supplies from Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Louis, and Illinois points at official short rates, while Marinette and Menominee would be compelled to pay the inter-territorial basis and western rates.

Peshigo particularly would be the victim of a "ruthless change." At present Peshigo, of which the principal industry is conducted by the Badger Paper Mills, is in official territory, while its chief competitor, Menasha, is the western territory. However, under the present decision, Menasha will be shifted to official territory on February 1, while Peshigo will complete the reversal by becoming part of western territory. This, the petition states, will mean the utter ruin of a fine industry, which has restored a city in bad business straits to normalcy.

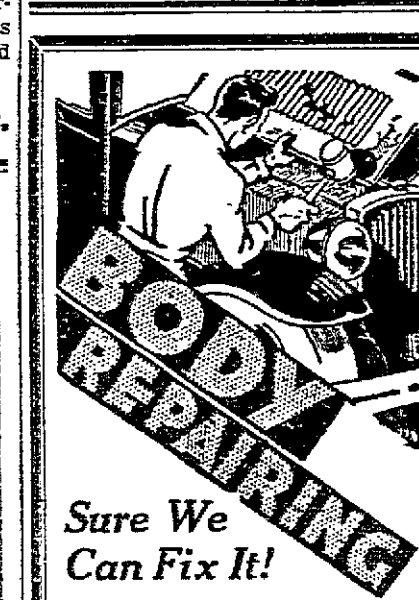

Menominee and Marinette are about 49 miles north of Green Bay, and have a population of approximately 25,000. Peshigo is 43 miles north of Green Bay, with a population of 2,000. Seventy-five percent of all products of these three cities are marketed in eastern and central freight association territory in direct competition with Green Bay, Appleton, Menasha, Neenah, Sheboygan, and others. The three complaining cities are served by the Ann Arbor railroad as well as the Chicago and Northwestern, but over the Ann Arbor no question of change is made by the two class rate investigations.

The Menominee Chamber of Commerce, the Marinette Industrial Board, and the Badger Paper Mills Inc. of Peshigo, authors of the petition, state:

"The would-be King under the sword of Damocles was in a comparative zone of safety as compared with the position in which the industries, jobbers, communities, investments, and property of your petitioners have been placed, while awaiting the Commission's decision."

DOG TAXES COMING IN SLOWLY, SAYS OFFICIAL

Kaukauna—Dog owners are slow in paying dog taxes, according to Joseph Dietzler, city treasurer. After March 28, the list of unpaid license will be turned over to the police for collection. The tax for dogs this year is $1 less than last year. The license for female dogs is $2 and for male dogs $1. The money is used to reimburse farmers for damage done by dogs to cattle and sheep.

Living Protoplasm Fails To Perish Under Strain

Easton, Pa. (P)—Rheologists, the newest branch of American scientists, have stretched living protoplasm into a thread so thin it is invisible under a microscope.

Extended thus 20 times successively, the protoplasm, each time has recovered, rubber-like, snapping back into place without interrupting its life.

This odd sidelight upon the extraordinary tenacity of the substance which is the foundation of all living flesh was made public today in a report of the first annual meeting of the Society of Rheologists, which was held here recently.

William Seifritz and Janet Plowe of the University of Pennsylvania, bared the protoplasm in single cells of onions so that it could be touched with the point of a needle. Sticking glue-like to the point, the living stuff was drawn out into a thread.

When no longer visible, the thread still showed its presence by the particles of other cell substances which could be seen streaming along the thread as if it were the wire of a cash carrier. The experiment shows that man can mechanically force this life stuff back into the region of minute size from which it grows originally, particles so tiny that biologists have been unable to take them apart to see why they are alive.

Rheology means the science of flow, and the society was organized

JOAN CRAWFORD IN DRAMATIC PICTURE

Star Expected to Surprise Fans in Vivid Underworld Drama

From all reports an agreeable surprise awaits those who see Joan Crawford in "Paid," her newest attraction which will head the bill at the Fox Theatre five days starting Monday.

For it seems that direct line with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's policy of giving its stars an opportunity to play varied roles, Miss Crawford discarded her "Dancing Daughter" and "Blushing Bride" type of characterization in this film in order to take a part which is conceded to be her most difficult one to date, namely that of the heroine of Bayard Veiller's underworld drama, "Within the Law," on which the picture is based.

There is a very exciting plot. Briefly, the plot of "Paid" concerns a shop girl, "framed" and sent to jail for a robbery, who plots revenge on society and on the man who had her incarcerated, only to fall in love with his son. A gang killing brings the plot to a climax.

Robert Armstrong, of "Is Zat So?" fame, heads the imposing supporting cast as Joe Carson, the gangster who loves the heroine but "takes the bait" so that she may be free to marry the man she really loves. Kent Douglas, a newcomer to the screen, has the romantic lead. Douglas is noted for his work on the stage in "Caprice" and other successes.

Marie Prevost, who last played in "War Nurse," is cast in the role of Aggie, and John Miljan, the screen's popular villain, is inspector Burke. Other important parts are those of Fumell Pratt as the store owner, Hale Hamilton as district attorney, Robert Emmet O'Connor as the detective, Tyrrell Davis, William Bakewell, George Cooper as the gangster, Gwen Lee as a "moll" and Isabel Withers as the girl whose crime sent the heroine to prison.

Sam Wood directed the talkization of the crook drama from the adaptation by Lucien Hubbard and Charles MacArthur.

LIGHT HUMOR MARKS "GOOD NEWS" IN FILMS

There are no tears to be shed for Bessie Love in "Good News," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's triumph of musical comedy transition, at the Elite Theatre next Thursday and Friday.

As far as we can remember, Bessie has always had to cry in her pictures. But here she is, gay and exuberant as a grasshopper — and just as lively. You'll laugh just as hard as you have cried with her for she is a cute little clown with a bag of tricks all her own.

The picturization of the famous musical success walks right away from the original stage production. It is screened upon a lavish scale with a cast that would leave a Broadway producer breathless on Saturday night. With Bessie heading the cast, there are featured stars as Stanley Smith, Mary Lawlor, Gus Shy, Lola Lane, Dorothy McNulty, Billy Taft, Cliff (Ukulele Ike) Edwards, Frank McGlynn and Tom Jackson.

ROMANTIC SCENES AREN'T SO EASY, ACTRESS CLAIMS

Don't Envy Leading Woman's Film Romance, "Her Man" Star Points Out

Those who envy the leading lady her screen moments of romance with the handsome leading man, may well consider the statement of Helen Twelvetees, who plays the romantic lead in Pathe's big production, "Her Man," which opens a three day engagement at Warner's Appleton Theatre tomorrow, Sunday.

The writer cast on the set early one morning and watched Helen and Ricardo Cortez do a tense and ardent scene in this virile screen drama. When she finished the interview exclaimed:

"Isn't it thrilling to do a scene like that?"

"How would you like to get out of bed at eight in the morning about a man you had been introduced to only the day before?" she answered. "Or worse still, how would you like to look lovingly up into a man's face while he sings you tender love songs at two o'clock in the afternoon when you haven't eaten since seven o'clock that morning, and can't think of anything but how desperately you need food?"

"But there are times when you haven't just stepped out of bed, and when you aren't hungry, then surely—"

"Well that depends," Helen interrupted. "Sometimes you're just in the right mood for a certain scene and then it's easy, but more often you're not."

The scenes of "Her Man" are located in the slums of Havana and the story deals with a girl habitué of a dance hall, whose sordid life is changed through the power of love for a sailor. There are numerous dramatic situations of great strength and the comedy is excellent. Aside from Miss Twelvetees, the featured players are Marjorie Rambeau, Phillips Holmes, Ricardo Cortez, James Gleason and Franklin Pangborn. The supporting cast includes Harry Sweet, Stanley Fields, Matthew Betz, Thelma Todd and Mike Donlin.

 Whereas, these band concerts were appreciated by the

No. 73. Report of the special committee on courthouse site.

Your special Courthouse Site Committee appointed pursuant to resolution No. 39 of this Board adopted April 17, 1930, to clear up the title to the courthouse property beg leave to report as follows:

We engaged an engineer to make a plat of the block on which the courthouse stands, dividing the property, in-

We held several meetings and decided that the best way to bring the matter to an issue would be to set a price to pay all of the heirs for their interest in the courthouse block, and if all of the heirs would quit claim their interest to Outagamie county, we would recommend to the County Board to pay $2,000.00 for a clear title to the courthouse property, to be apportioned according to the interest of each heir.

We then got in communication with most of the heirs, namely twenty-eight in number, and have had considerable correspondence with them.

The heirs of one of the original grantors assured the committee that they would quit claim their interest in the property on the basis above set forth.

Some of the heirs of another of the original grantors are also willing to accept; others of the same branch we have not, as yet, heard from.

The heirs of another of the original grantors has refused to reply to our letters.

The heirs of another of the grantors refused to consider the proposition and declined same.

We, therefore, would recommend that unless all of the heirs of the original grantors accept our offer and convey their interest to the county pursuant thereto, we drop the matter of clearing up the title and proceed with our courthouse project to all intents and purpose as if no negotiations had ever been undertaken or entered into.

board of the town of Cienega Grande, New Mexico, respectfully represents that on 1st day of April, 1931, at the annual town meeting of said town, the electors thereof voted to construct a new bridge and repair the present bridge lying partly within said town, as described in the resolution herein mentioned; that at the same time provision was made for the payment by the said town of Cienega of the proportion of the cost on construction and repairing such bridges required by law to be paid by said town, as follows, which is a true and correct copy of the resolution so adopted:

town, as appears in the record book of said resolution: "Resolved that the Town Board is authorized to use their best judgment in construction of a new bridge and repairing the present bridge over the Shioe river on the west line of Section 6 in the town of Cicero, the approximate cost to the town for the new bridge would be about $1500.00 and repairing the old bridge would be about $350.00 providing the County appropriate a like amount to complete the work." and further resolution of said town of Cicero.

ther that the total valuation of said town according to the last assessment, as equalized by the town board on the 24th day of June, 1922 was $174,997.00. No. 147. Communication from Reilly, Fenner & Benson, auditors, read. (Sale of tax certificates)

Milwaukee, Wis., November 8, 1930.

Wm. Beck, Chairman of Finance Committee,

Dear Sir:—During our recent examination of the County records, a practice in the sale of County tax certificates was disclosed, which, we believe, should be called to your attention.

On the smaller sales, the following transactions were recorded for descriptions of the 1929 sale:

Buyer	Amount Received
2-39-39 Seymour State Buyer	$7,538.83
2-39-39 J. Zucklich	9,360.00
2-39-39 B. J. Zucklich	7,832.32
2-39-39 C. Schilling	3,841.87
2-39-39 H. Weissenbach	2,251.65
2-39-39 Chas. Freund	1,742.99
2-39-39 A. J. Kelly	1,920.71
2-39-39 M. Dietzler	12,202.49

On November 3, 1930, a check was issued to the amount of $48,420.46 and delivered on November 5, 1930 to M. Dietzler for payment of 1930 tax certificates all of which were redeemed on the date of the cash receipt. The check included $286.75 redemption fees.

It has been the practice of the County Treasurer to demand payment for descriptions bid in until the certificates were ready for delivery. It has also been the practice to require the buyer to pay the redemption fees on certificates at face value without interest almost at any time without a definite limit date after sale. This is done to relieve the county of the burden of carrying certificates that might otherwise not be sold.

It is probable that the above sale was made when the descriptions are bid in they should be paid for. It is our contention further that if the descriptions are not then paid for there is no legal sale until such descriptions are paid for. We believe further that where the municipality is not paid for the sale of the certificates at a certain date or date, within a reasonable time permitting payment for certificates at face value without interest at a time a great deal later than when other buyers paid for their certificates, is discriminatory.

We believe further, that the statute does not intend to bidding for descriptions at the sale, without payment for such descriptions to be a legal sale, and that consequently the sale of redeemed certificates, redeemed at face value, to the buyer for the purpose of the statute, is not a legitimate sale but is an abuse of practice, which should be remedied before it is permitted to be extended.

To correct the situation requires careful consideration. The county of course desires to sell as many certificates as possible in order to relieve the county of the burden of carrying them. The county on the other hand should be entitled to all redemption fees on certificates that have not actually been transferred out of county ownership and possession at the time they are sold.

Our suggestions take several forms:

1. That the County Treasurer be required to have certificates ready for delivery immediately after sale, and that the bidder be then notified of the amounts they have bid in and receive payment therefor the next day or within a day or two after the original bid money stands, and the bidder then becomes a buyer of certificates as any other purchaser. The abuse then existing in selling redeemed certificates would then be practically remedied.

2. That the County Treasurer be prohibited from selling certificates that have been redeemed prior to the payment therefor by the purchaser. This method was aimed at discriminating against legitimate bidders, and would be a remedy for the same.

3. That the County Treasurer be required to demand payment at or within a day of the date of sale when the bids are placed.

This method, we believe, would eliminate any abuse, and would be a remedy for the same. The county would then be relieved of the burden of carrying certificates until they are ready for delivery to the buyer.

Or 4. That the county treasurer place a bid at the sale for all tax certificates excepting drainage certificates for the county, and that the county then assign these certificates to anyone desiring to buy. The certificates shall be sold at face value without interest until a reasonable period after the sale has elapsed. Our suggestions would be to September 30 of the year of the sale.

Of all the suggestions the fourth seems the better and more logical. In any case certificates should be ready at a time earlier than is now the case. The resolution should be drawn by your District Attorney and his advice asked for in any and all of these matters.

We, however, suggest the resolutions as follows for the suggestions as offered and in the same sequence. The County Treasurer have the tax certificates ready for delivery not later than August 1, 1930, whereupon notice be given to all bidders of the amounts due from them for certificates bid in. Certificates not paid for within 48 hours after such notice shall become county property. All county owned certificates can be assigned without a face value to September 30 of the year of sale.

Note: (Since income tax collections interfere to a marked degree with the preparation of the certificates, this resolution and suggestion No. 1 are not favored.)
The county treasurer is instructed to demand payment for tax certificates as soon as they are ready for delivery, and that all certificates bid in at the sale be paid for excepting that the county treasurer be prohibited from selling and receiving payment for certificates received from sale and prior to the date of such payments.

Note: (This resolution may be able to be enforced since the bid may have included descriptions later added, although we believe the statute does not recognize a bid as a legal tender unless it is accompanied by cash.)
The County Treasurer is required to accept payment for certificates bid in, or a deposit sufficient to cover the face value of such certificate. Such payment or deposit is to be made at the rate of the bid or within 48 hours thereafter. A bid not accompanied by payment or deposit is to be null and void.

Note: (This requirement we believe is now the intention of the Statute. However, bidders often refuse to pay until the certificates are delivered. This resolution will put the certificates as delivered and in that way burden the county.)
Or 4. The county treasurer is instructed to place a bid for the county for all tax certificates excepting drainage certificates placed at the tax sale. Such certificates then can be assigned at face value to any person desiring to buy up to and including September 30 of the year of sale.

Note: (This resolution and the suggestion 4 we believe to be the logical one to correct the present abuse. However, bidders often refuse to pay until the certificates are delivered. This resolution will put the certificates as delivered and in that way burden the county.)
We shall be glad to give any further help needed.
Respectfully,
Reilly, Penner & Bonton,
By A. E. Wegner.

No. 149. Resolution of various supervisors read. (Re-paving of old State Trunk 54.)
To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Outagamie County, Wisconsin.
Gentlemen:—We, the undersigned, hereby petition your Honorable Body to instruct the County Highway Commissioner to grade and gravel that portion of highway known as old "54" commencing at a point in the village of Shiocton where it intersects with the highway known as old "54" and extending through the Town of Bovina, Ellington and Liberty to the intersection of new "54" in the Town of Liberty, a distance of approximately six and one-half miles.
This highway was formerly a patrolled road and approximately eight years ago was taken over by the state as a state trunk highway and was known as State Trunk "54".
On December 28th, 1929, after the re-routing of state trunk "54" had been completed, the state trunk highway was returned to the towns. Therefore, we, the undersigned, feel that this highway should be put in condition by grading and graveling before being taken back by the towns as town highway.

The town of Bovina will aid in this improvement to the extent of their two mill tax which will be between $100.00 and $200.00.
The Town of Bovina will also aid in this improvement to the extent of $500.00 or more.
We therefore request that this County Board instruct the County Highway Commissioner to grade and gravel that portion of highway above described for the reasons as above outlined.
Dated this 21st day of November, A. D. 1930.

Chapter 35

MRS. FROST wrote at length to her daughter Amelia, now living in London, complaining bitterly of Fanny's latest perfidy.

"Unless you could see for yourself," the letter said, "you would not believe how four days with that woman have changed our darling, gentle little Sheila. The child seems under a spell--sullen, defiant, utterly callous to appeals to her natural affections. The most we can get out of her is that she is sorry she caused us so much heart-break and anxiety but not sorry she went to see her mother. Though obviously impossible, Sheila insists that the visit was entirely her own idea. Nor will she tell us how or where that creature (I cannot call her Fanny) managed to get in touch with her."

Ten days later Mrs. Frost wrote, "I'm sorry my letter is late but we're still having a dreadful time with Sheila. As she will not promise not to run away again, we do not dare let her go any place alone--not even to school. Last Thursday as David was preparing to make his weekly call on Mary Morton, Sheila said rudely, 'When you marry Miss Mary you won't want me, so why can't I go live with my mother?'

"David, like a ninny, meekly telephoned Mary he could not see her that evening and has not been heard since. He is of course playing straight into that woman's hands, as Sheila would never have thought of such a thing herself."

The day before Christmas Mrs. Frost took her granddaughter with her to the bank, where she drew out a number of gold pieces as presents for the servants. At the teller's window they met Sheila's bachelor cousin, Albert Brownbeck, engaged on the same errand. Albert immediately carried Sheila off to select herself a gift, promising to drive her home. Sheila chose a small red bag.

"Why, that isn't much of a present," Cousin Albert protested generously.

Sheila hung her head.

"Well--if you want to, you could put something in it."

Cousin Albert was never more than half bright; he slipped a $10 gold piece into the bag. But that night, while her father and grandmother were busy decorating her tree, Sheila locked her door on the back stairs unnoticed, and caught the midnight train for New York. She was headed off by telegraph and brought home in the early dawn.

"How could you?" Mrs. Frost asked sadly. On Christmas Eve your poor father--who has already suffered so dreadfully! And now you, his own little daughter, whom he adores, to break his heart!"

"I guess he doesn't care how much he breaks my heart--or my mother's heart," Sheila half sobbed.

"For shame!" Mrs. Frost drew herself erect. "You have to know some time. You are almost twelve years old. No matter how you blind yourself you do know in your heart how patient and good your father is--how forgiving. But there is one sin that cannot be forgiven. Can you honestly make yourself believe that we would have taken you away from your mother if it had not been necessary, if she had been a good woman?"

Late the next afternoon Sheila followed Leona the cook up to her room. Sheila seated herself on the floor, her head against Leona's knee. They sat there quietly. Finally Sheila asked:

"Leona, what is the unforgivable sin?"

Leona hesitated.

"That's a question that the preachers been fighting over ever since Adam and Eve sinned their selves out of the garden. As far as I can figure out, it's may be for one person to set about deliberately to make another think he or she isn't of no account--that whatever they do aren't worth doing."

Sheila puzzled over this.

"Did my mother do that?" she asked.

"No, honey. It never mattered to her whether people was black or white, rich or poor--she treated 'em all exactly alike."

"But Grandmother said my mother--committed an unforgivable sin."

"Your grandma shouldn't ought to have said that. I reckon when it comes to what we've been talking about, your mama was more done against than doing." There was a surprising warmth in Leona's tone. She added with her usual mildness, "your grandma's getting old and it makes her kinda spiteful to be cross-ed. You've crossed her considerable lately. But your mama's real sweet and good--a lady if I ever seen one. Don't you let nobody make you think different."

"But Grandmother said she was bad--a bad woman. And she must have done something, or Daddy wouldn't have sent her away. But nobody will explain. Daddy won't, and you won't, and my mother won't. And I can't ask Marjorie--or any of the girls. They stop talking--and look so funny, when anyone says anything about mothers. They feel so sorry for me..."

She threw herself in Leona's arms, racked with sobs. Leona smoothed her hair, comforted her as best she could. When it was quite dark, and Sheila's sobs came at long intervals, Leona said softly:

"I've been going over in my mind how your Aunt Amelia used to come up here when she was a little girl. Kinda careless and happy-go-lucky Amelia were, but awful tender-hearted. When she were older she was always standing up for everybody she felt sorry for--your mama specially. She were awful fond of your mama."

Sheila sat up and shook her hair out of her eyes.

"Leona, if I wrote to Aunt Amelia, would she tell me?"

"I can't rightly say," answered Leona cautiously, "but if she wanted to tell you, she would't pay no attention if your grandma told her she wasn't to. She never took your grandma too serious, like your papa and all the family do. If Amelia felt your grandma were in the wrong she'd just as soon lay her out as anybody. But I shouldn't want you should say that I put you up to writing her."

"I won't," Sheila promised hastily.

An embryo resolve, long gestating in Leona's heart and brain, finally took shape and form.

"If you should happen to write your Aunt Amelia," she said slowly and portentously, "you put this in, exactly same as I'm telling you. Your write, Leona says she aren't one for interfering, but to tell you you ought to know Miss Fanny ain't never been treated right."

"I'll write it down right away, before I forget," Sheila promised.

In London, 10 days later, Amelia found a letter from her mother at the top of a heavy breakfast mail.

"Sheila's tried to run away again--wanted to spend Christmas with Fanny," Amelia told her husband. "They headed her off, but Mother's terribly upset and bitter. Serves her right--David to. I don't care what Fanny did, it's an outrage not to let her see her own child occasionally."

She worked slowly through her mail. At the bottom was a small pink envelope addressed in a child's hand.

"Dear Aunt Amelia," she read. "Will you please tell me what my mother did? It's terribly important for me to know. Grandmother says my mother is a bad woman. Leona told me to tell you she aren't one for interfering but you ought to know Miss Fanny ain't never been treated right. Daddy says Leona thinks you are the smartest person in the world, and I guess maybe she knows. Your loving niece, Sheila Frost, P. S. Love to Uncle Clark."

Having no children of her own, Amelia's heart was especially tender for David's little daughter.

"Why, you're crying! What's the matter?" demanded Clark. Amelia threw him the letter.

"Poor kid," said Clark. "This is a good deal of a poser. What are you going to write her?"

"I'm not going to write her anything," smiled Amelia. "I never have been altogether satisfied about Fanny. Now that Leona has sent for me I'm taking the first boat for New York."

LIQUOR ISSUE BATTLE AHEAD IN U. S. SENATE

Howell Bill for District of Columbia to Be Debate Center

Washington—(AP)—The liquor question moved into the senate chamber today, and prospects were the visit would be a stormy one and long.

A vehicle for unlimited prohibition debate, the Howell bill to establish a drastic enforcement act for the District of Columbia, stood at the top of the calendar, designated as the order of business.

It was given preferred position last yesterday by a 29 to 28 vote after its Nebraska Republican author pleaded for its consideration with a vivid description of drinking conditions in the capital.

Republican Leader Watson and such drys as Senators Borah of Idaho, and Smoot of Utah, Republicans, tried to prevent taking it up, arguing that time should be devoted now to legislation of national scope, especially that having bearing on relief projects. It appeared likely the measure would be put aside periodically for consideration of appropriation bills.

Anti-prohibitionists were laying for the Howell bill, planning to offer as amendments many proposals, including some of those advanced by the Wickham commission, for which they seek tests. The senate wets admit themselves outnumbered but already have offered such amendments as to provide law imprisonment for dry law violators and to make legal 4 per cent beer.

Hasa, Senator Howell's bill contains a provision permitting search and seizure in homes, to which attorney General Mitchell is opposed. Objection also has been advanced to this by Senator Watson with the assertion it conflicts with the Wickham report's views, but the measure's author contends that as a local police regulation it does not come within the scope of these recommendations.

In arguing for his bill Howell yesterday said diplomatic liquor permits had, during three months, brought into the city enough liquor to "provide 20 quarts for every diplomat and member of his household, down to the maids and janitors."

At a recent convention here, he said, nine thousand quarts of liquor were ordered by the chairman of the entertainment committee. Howell said the police of the capital had no authority to enforce the prohibition law, and the district attorney would not prosecute persons for carrying a pint of liquor.

Senator Tydings, Democrat, Maryland, told the senate a vote by the people of Washington would defeat the Howell bill three to one. He advanced the life imprisonment amendment, while the one increasing the alcoholic content of beer was proposed by Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut.

Before the senate took up the Howell bill it had brought itself abreast of the calendar for the first time this session by passing the agricultural department appropriation, third supply bill to get through in as many days. The house also moved ahead, finishing action yesterday on the state, justice, labor and commerce appropriation which carries prohibition enforcement funds, and turning today to the appropriations of the independent government offices. Those include the veterans bureau, shipping board and numerous commissions.

BANKRUPTCY RULING MAY SET PRECEDENT

Washington—(AP)—Business was bad in Harry Rachmil's Seattle furniture store in January, 1929, but he probably had no idea he was on his way toward raising a pretty legal question when he slashed the price of rocking chairs and beds.

He also offered a 10 per cent reduction to all who would pay old accounts and with the money that came in, approximately $10,000—he went to Vancouver, Canada, early in February.

Soon afterwards the store went into bankruptcy and a trustee was appointed. Rachmil was arrested, brought and charged with fraudulent concealment of assets. He was convicted in a federal court and sentenced to two years in prison.

A court of appeals reversed the judgment, saying the evidence did not show Rachmil knew of the appointment of a trustee and therefore could not have concealed assets from him.

The government has appealed to the supreme court, contending that unless Rachmil's conviction was sustained, a precedent would be set for all like-minded bankrupts.

NOT SO DRY

Upton, Mass.—David Shuber's well was nearly dry as David thought it was. He descended to the bottom of the well to see what was wrong. No water did he find, but he did discover, in the mud that covered the bottom, a dozen bottles of pre-Prohibition beer. It is thought that the beer had been there for about twelve years.

NEW LONDON IN 25 TO 9 VICTORY OVER W. DE PERE

Defense of Victors Works Smoothly to Hold Scoring Down

New London—West DePere was soundly whipped by the New London high school basketball team at Werner's hall here Friday night. New London's defense clicked perfectly, and although Carroll got the mauling of tipoffs, the New London boys, who gained possession of the ball, Raby and Dernbach went wild with their shooting, and counted for most of New London's points. Pfeiffer and Westphal fed the ball, while Ladwig broke up the visitors' offensive plays. The score at the half was 17-3.

DePere started the scoring with a free throw followed by Dernbach's long side shot, and a short shot a few seconds later. On the next tip-off, Kenadors bounced in a long shot to bring the score 4-3. Ladwig, after being fouled by Van Sistine, added a point on a free throw. The next tipoff was a fast play, the ball being handled three times, with Raby shooting the basket. After Janzen missed a free throw Westphal made his fourth good shot. Another fast tipoff play resulted in Raby getting his second basket of the evening. Pfeiffer then came to life by sinking a pretty one handed shot. DePere started to shoot in substitutes to try to hold their opponents, and they promptly fouled Raby. On two chances Fred connected for one. Pfeiffer and Ladwig, a trifle rough in their play, with DePere getting three shots at the half. However, they missed all of their shots. After a lot of back passing Raby finally managed to squirm his way through DePere's defense for another basket. Westphal came through with one of his one handed shots just before the half ended.

Raby and Dernbach opened up the second half, both making baskets, while Ladwig went out of the game on fouls. The other Raby twin took his place. About this time DePere started to function and in about two minutes made three pretty baskets to bring the score 21 to 9. Floyd Raby went out with Stab Brown taking his place. After Westphal missed two free throws Pfeiffer added one point, while on the play Van Sistine went on personals. Farrell, who took Brown's place, passed the ball to Dernbach, who dribbled through three men to make a short pot shot. Just before the game ended Dernbach was given a free throw which he made to bring the score 25-9.

One of the largest crowds of the season witnessed the game which was preceded by a preliminary between the second teams. West won this game. A dance followed the game, with music by the high school orchestra.
